TRIAL MARRIAGE WIFE MISSING

Scenes as Summer School At Pitt Ends

STOCKS BREAK; MARKET BOILS

VANISHES; PART-TIME ROMANCE ENDS

Mary Groves Hull, of 7902 Frankstown avenue, 16-year-old bride of Henry A. Hull, Jr., is missing.

Now Mary has been missing before, but this time she disappeared just when she was about to set herself up as Pittsburgh's Fannie Hurst—author of a pact which allowed her and her husband to have certain evenings to themselves and "dates" outside the family.

Mary disappeared a month ago, her mother told police, and when she returned ill she suggested that she and her hubby divide the calendar. Mary was to be allowed to entertain other friends on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, and Henry had the same privilege, but on Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday the married state must prevail. "Positively no other company," the pact read, "and must be home at midnight."

Henry signed the pact and dispatched it to Mary's home, where Mary was believed to be convalescing. Far from convalescing, Mary had apparently again been bitten by the wanderlust, and the pact was allowed to gather dust.

A month ago when Mary disappeared she was accompanied, police were told, by Bertha Litfin, 14, of 1815 Wylie avenue, and their trip resulted in the arrest of Fred Hannan, 20, because, police heard, Hannan had once been "Mary's beau." Hannan's hearing was delayed pending Mary's recovery.

Fatal Train Crash Laid To 'Reds'

By International News Service.

STRUTEVANT, Wis., Aug. 12.—Two men were killed and a dozen mail clerks seriously injured today when a Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul fast mail train, Chicago bound, was wrecked two miles from here.

L. H. Brock, engineer, and T. M. Webber, firemen, both of Milwaukee, lost their lives in the wreck. The train was traveling 65 miles an hour on a nonstop run. Other members of the crew were injured. The train, consisting of eight cars, carried only mail and baggage.

The locomotive left the rails, ploughed through the gravel roadbed, turned over on its side and skidded in front of a freight locomotive on a siding. The freight engine escaped damage.

Deputy Sheriff Henry Harmon said he thought the switch had deliberately been opened, and attributed the wreck to Sacco-Vanzetti radicals.

AWARD $1,563,150 FOR GRANT ST. DAMAGES

Property owners in Grant street would receive damages amounting to $1,563,150 as a result of the widening of that thoroughfare, if the schedule of the County Board of Viewers remains unchanged. This amount is $486,850 less than the city law department's estimate.

The total amount of damages awarded was $1,766,000, but an estimated amount of benefits to property owners was deducted, and this greatly reduced the amount.

The awards cover the property from Water street to Seventh avenue, although a portion of the street near the waterfront has not been widened. They city was unable to collect benefits totaling $48,000 from the First Lutheran Church and the Grant

NO HEADACHES WHEN SALLY'S AROUND

Mrs, Jerome was stout. She claimed to be suffering from headaches. She read in bed much of the day and night, and worried for fear Sally some day might marry.

And then there was Aunt Emily Jerome, a spinster with an exceeding measure of common sense. She had her opinion.

"Surely, your mother always has headaches," she told Sally, "but if she didn't stay in bed half the time, if she hustled around and occupied her mind; took an interest in life, walked and didn't eat so much, they'd soon go away."

Not many mothers are like Mrs. Jerome, but there are often mothers of families that can be identified as belonging to her type. And still, she is just one of the types that run through "Sally's Shoulders," the enthralling new serial novel by Beatrice Burton, which starts in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Monday.

Types! That's what every character in this new novel may truthfully be called.

Sally is one of them and she is the most lovable.

Sister Millie is another, and while not to be despised, could be censured.

Ted Sloan belongs to the indefinite class.

Jack Nye is met at one time or another in the life of every American girl.

"Beau" Jerome, Sally's brother, Mr. Hank Peevey; Mabel, "Beau's" sweetheart and all the others roam freely in the everyday existence of home and business.

They are waiting to be identified by you.

The first installment will be printed Monday, in the Sun-Telegraph.

LEADS CHICAGO MOB

"ON, COMRADES! MOB POLICE!"
Aurora D'Aneglio, 16, arrested by Chicago police as leader of Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers attempting downtown parade singing "Internationale," radical marching song. Her battle cry was: "On, Comrades! Mob the police! Strike! Strike! Sacco and Vanzetti must not die!"

BLAZE DRAWS CROWD

A great crowd was attracted to William Penn way and Oliver avenue shortly before 2 o'clock this afternoon while firemen battled with a blaze on the roof of a three-story brick building at 513 William Penn way. Traffic was interrupted and police were called out to guard spectators.

More than a score of workers employed by the H. Koppers Company, on the second and third floors of the building, fled to the street, carrying blue prints and other materials. The fire was in the cornice of the building, which formerly was occupied by the old Pittsburgh Leader. The damage was slight.

SEIZE DEMPSEY FIGHT FILMS; ARREST OWNER

A set of films of the Dempsey-Sharkey fight in New York were seized today by United States District Attorney John D. Meyer from Tony Molarino, of Pittsburgh, under the Federal statute prohibiting the transportation of fight films in interstate commerce, when Molarino took them to the government attorney's office and inquired whether they could be exhibited under a special permit.

Besides the seizure of the banned motion pictures, Molarino was placed under $500 bond pending a hearing before the United States Commissioner for unlawful transportation of the films, which he admitted bringing from New York.

CHAPLIN TO FIGHT LITA'S CHARGES "TO FINISH"

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—(AP.)—Charles Chaplin today was en route to Los Angeles from New York prepared for a "fight to the finish for the sake of my name and the future of my two babies" in the divorce suit brought by his young wife, Lita Grey Chaplin.

The screen comedian halted here between trains last night just long enough to make known that he had definitely instructed his attorneys to withdraw all offers of a settlement out of court and arrange for the court fight, set for August 22.

Chaplin said he had made many offers to settle the suit, but ridiculed reports that he had offered his wife $1,000,000.

"I am weary of it all," he said, "and have decided to go back to Los Angeles and fight for my name and fortune. I do not care for the money, but I want my name cleared so my babies will be proud of it.

"I am going to go into court and face all the charges my wife has brought against me. There I shall let the public decide my fate, for I am sure I shall be vindicated. I can easily disprove the charges."

VALUES ON EXCHANGE CRASH DOWN

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—(AP.)—Trading in the stock market today was demoralized following a wide-open break in a long list of specialty shares which have been supported by pools. At 2:30 o'clock the ticker tape was 21 minutes behind the market, making it difficult for brokers to know whether or not their orders had been executed.

Huge blocks of shares were offered for sale, due to inability or unwillingness to meet calls for additional margin, and breaks of 4 points or more were numerous in such leaders as General Motors, Atchison, Jersey Central and General Electric. Air Reduction was forced down 22 points, while Commercial Solvents "B" and DuPont dropped 17 and 15, respectively.

House Set Afire by Robber

The attempt of a robber to burn the home of Mrs. J. J. Walsh at 635 Herschel street after he had ransacked the house this afternoon and had stolen $10, was frustrated by neighbors who noticed smoke issuing from one of the basement windows. Firemen were called and the blaze was extinguished.

An investigation showed that a waste basket had been overturned in the basement and the contents set afire. Neighbors who noticed the man enter the house during the absence of the family gave police his description. The money was taken from a dresser drawer.

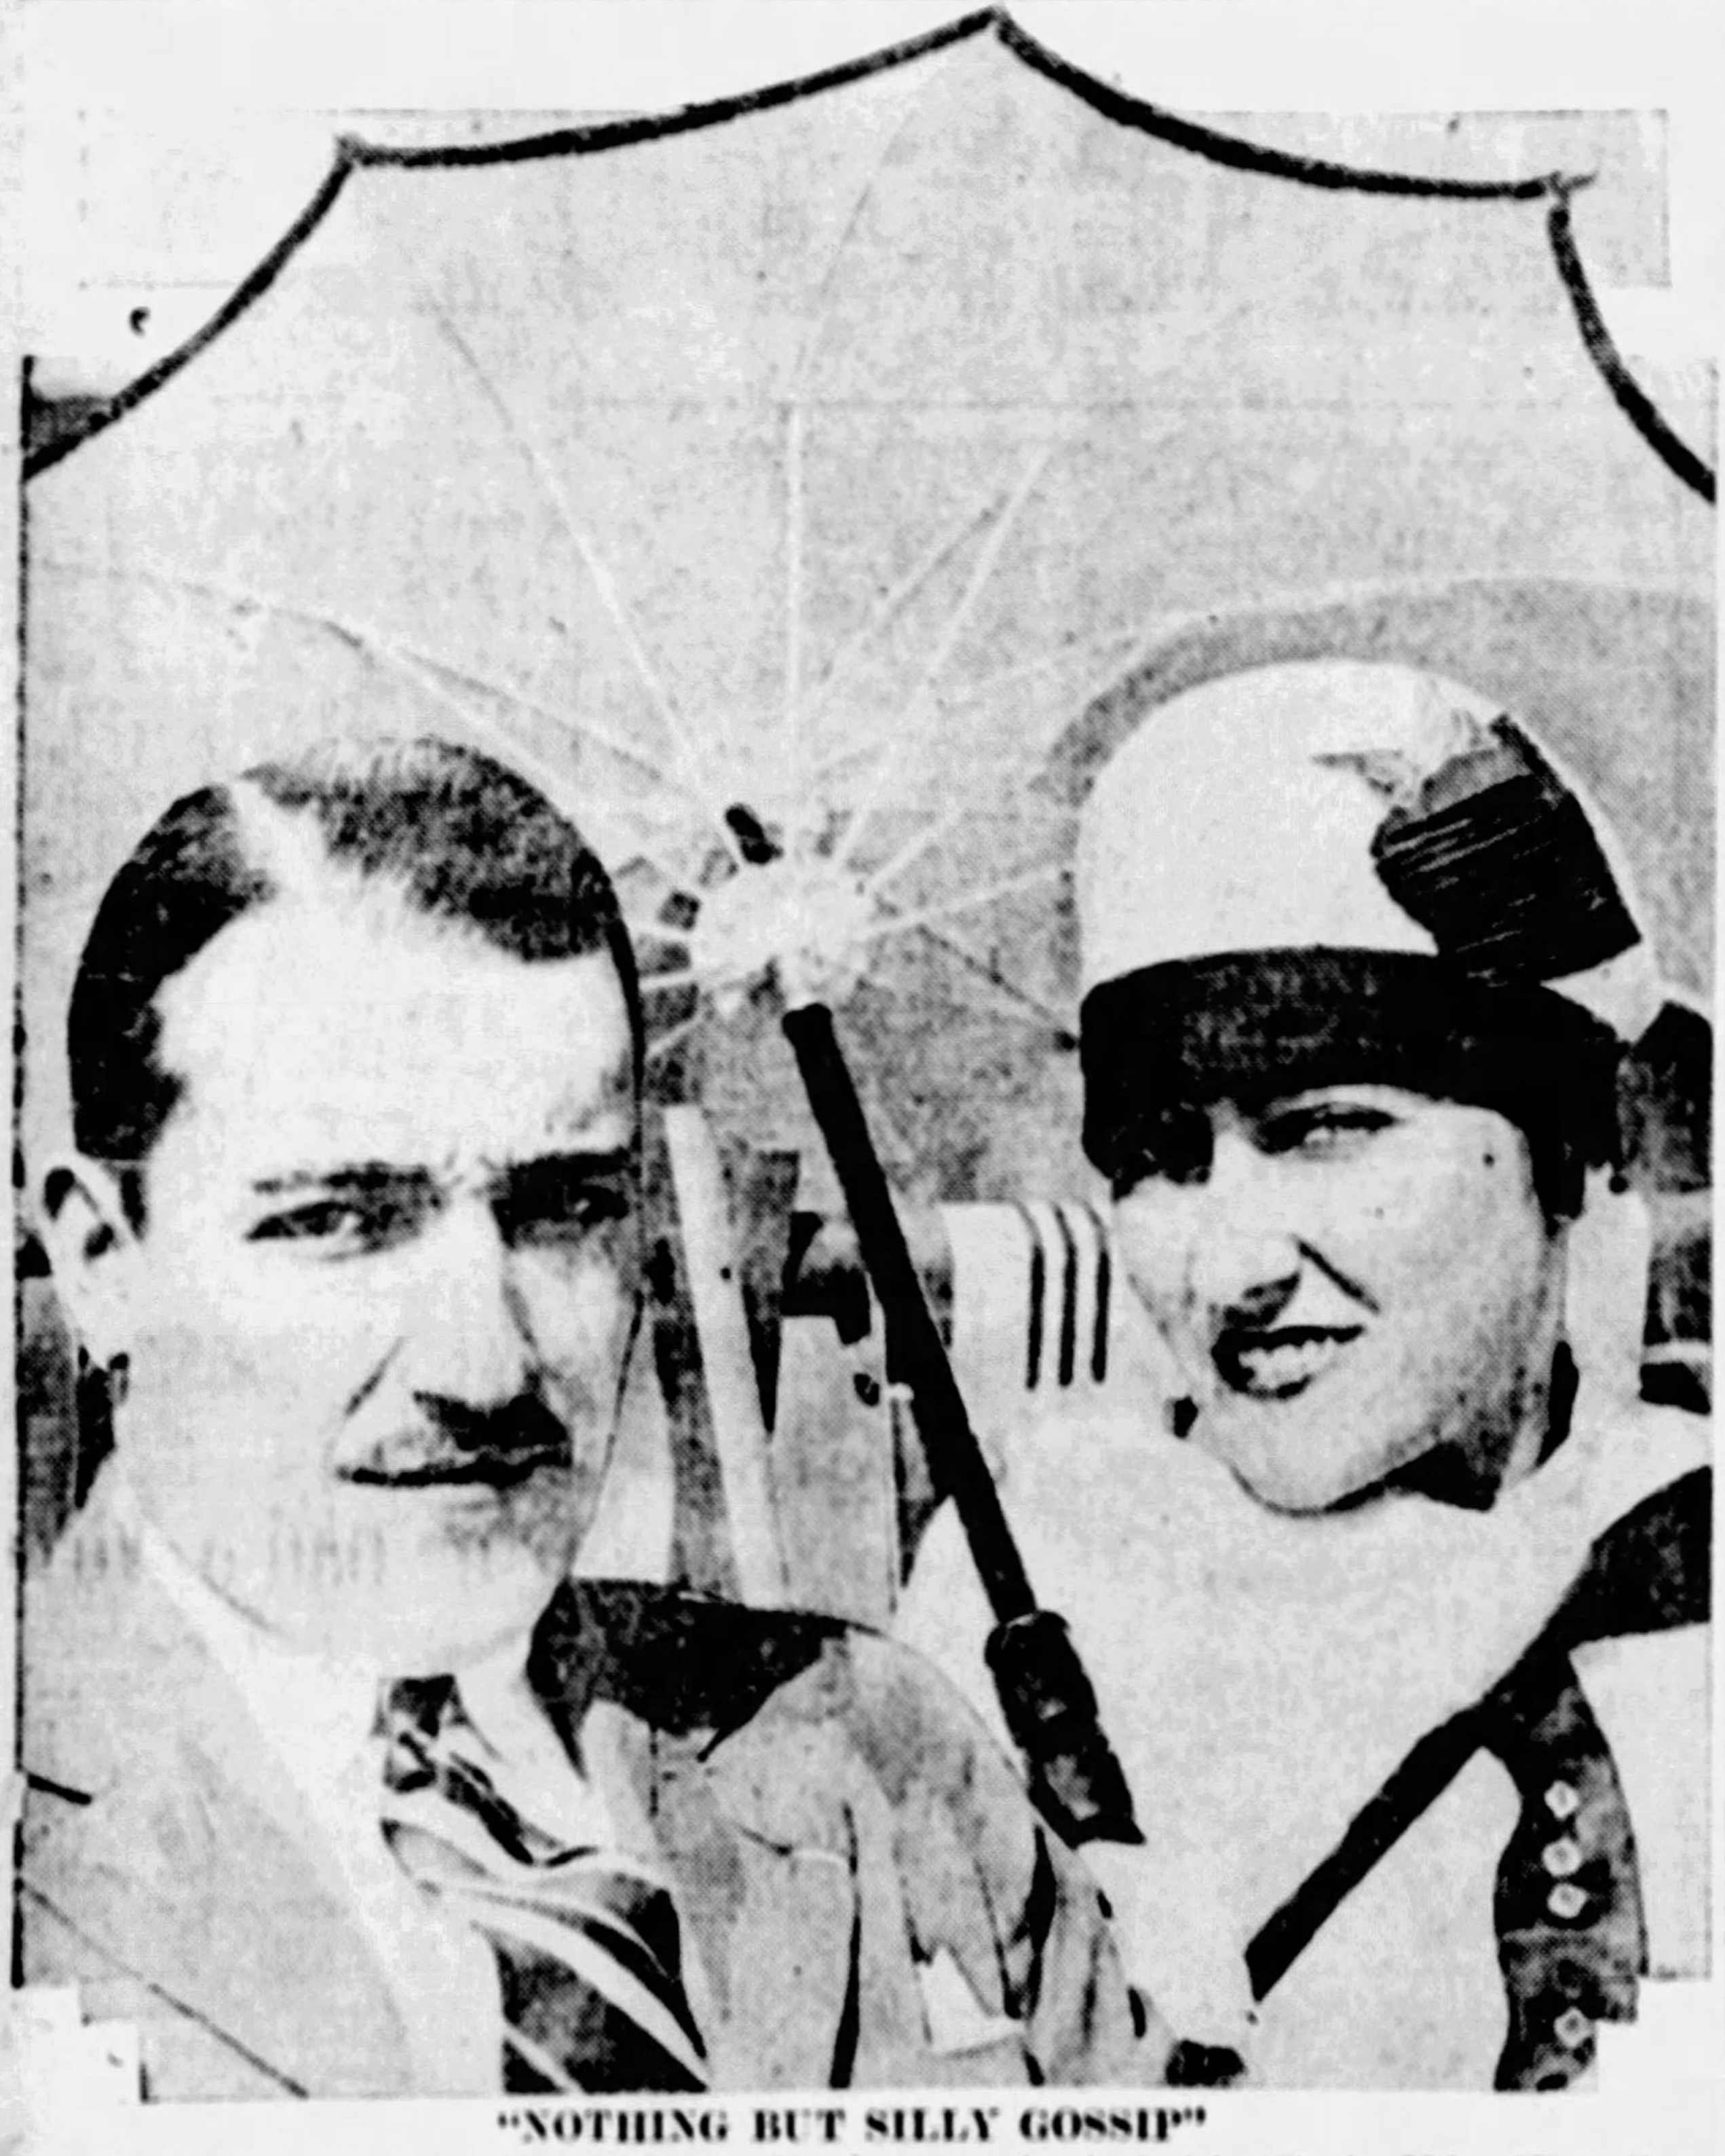
NOT SEEKING DIVORCE—GLORIA



"NOTHING BUT SILLY GOSSIP"

Gloria Swanson, with third husband, the Marquis Henri de la Falaise de la Coudraye, from whom Hollywood gossip had her seeking divorce. "It's nothing but silly gossip," Gloria said today in denial. "He should be able to dine with friends and not start talk. He's going to Paris alone because I'm working on a new picture."

'It's Not True,' Gloria Says of Divorce Talk

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS.
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 12.—Gloria Swanson denies vehemently, emphatically, and every other way a lady can deny a story and still be a lady that she has or ever has had any intention of sueing the Marquis de la Falaise for divorce.

"Why can't they leave us alone," she asked, when a printed story was shown to her headlining the rumor that she and Henrie would seek their marital freedom as soon as he returned to his native France.

"I hadn't been married six weeks," said Gloria, "before the gossips were busy trying to separate us. I have no objection to divorce," she said, "but at this time I do not happen to want to divorce Henri. When I do I will tell you."

That was a month ago.

Last Tuesday Gloria and the Marquis de la Falaise were lunching at the Montemarte—at different tables. Less than a week later a story appeared that she would sue the marquis for divorce and name a certain screen actress.

Henri said: "Why does Gloria [illegible] hat people say. What does [illegible] ?"

[illegible] ntly it matters a great deal, [illegible] on as Gloria was told that another story concerning her divorce from Henri had been published, she hurried back to Los Angeles from Catalina. Henri came with her. He leaves Hollywood for New York Sunday and sails for France August 19.

"It is unjust," Gloria said, "that Henri's visit to Paris at this time should be considered to mean a divorce. The government demands that foreigners return to their native land every six months and Henri must leave not later than September if he wishes to keep his French citizenship. What can we do?"

Gloria told me about the published report that she intends to name a certain screen actress. "I feel helpless," she said. "If I make a fuss, additional publicity will be given a story that is absolutely untrue."

CULT HEAD NEVER GOT DIVORCE

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., Aug 12.—(AP.)—"King" Benjamin Purnell, on the stand as a witness for himself in the state's dissolution suit against the House of David, today admitted on cross examination by Assistant Attorney General George E. Nichols that he had never secured a legal divorce from his first wife.

"Eighteen or 19 attorneys told me I didn't need one. I was only an ignorant boy then," he said.

It has been the contention of the state that Purnell was a bigamist. His wife, "Queen" Mary, had previously insisted that Purnell had secured a divorce and that she was legally married to Purnell.

HUNT SISTERS' SLAYER

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 12.—(AP.)—Police today delved further into gang war conspiracies in an effort to solve the slayings of two sisters whose deaths brought unsolved killings here to 11 during the past 15 months.

The husbands of the two women, Mrs. Ruth Barrett, 32, and Mrs. Lillian Kooser, 35, were sought by police. The women were found shot to death in the Barrett home Thursday.

Mrs. Barrett's husband, James Barrett, alias O'Byrne, alias Harry Norris, was engaged in an automobile finance business here. Police are investigating the possibility that he, too, may have been slain. His automobile was found burned on a county road near here.

Kooser, whose wife came here a few months ago from Mankato, Minn., to live with her sister, is charged with grand larceny in connection with a jewelry store robbery at Blue Earth, Minn. He has been at liberty on bail. Several months ago he was acquitted on a bank robbery charge. He is believed to be somewhere in Canada.

Police learned that one of the women was a friend of two women who were slain here five years ago in what was believed to have been a bootleg gang feud.

STREET WOMEN JAILED

With six women before him as a result of a police drive to rid Pittsburgh streets of undesirable women, Magistrate A. D. Brandon, in Morals Court today, lectured the plainclothesmen against arresting women without sufficient evidence.

"It is not enough that a woman has a record," the magistrate said. "Many reform, and it is not up to you to do anything that would discourage them from maintaining their new standards."

Of those arrested in last night's campaign, in which 28 plainclothesmen participated, three were discharged. One was sentenced to 30 days in the workhouse. Two others, who denied the accusations and said they had regular employment, were held for investigation.

Five of the women were arrested downtown, the other in Oakland. The crusade will be continued tonight.

Sacco Abandons Hope; Starving, Spurns Food

STATE ACTS TO FORCE HIM TO EAT

By HERBERT CARYL,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

BOSTON, Aug. 12.—Nicola Sacco lifted a frail hand above his blanket as he lay on his cot in the state prison today and waved away guards who came to offer him breakfast.

It was the twenty-seventh day of his hunger strike.

Downstairs in Warden William Henry's office various methods of forcible feeding were discussed. The warden, it was stated, planned to use some method to save Sacco from starving to death. He consulted with Dr. Joseph I. McLaughlin, the prison physician.

Sacco usually walks about his cell in the morning. This morning, however, he kept to his cot.

Those who have seen Sacco said he had abandoned hope, although his case, and that of Bartolomeo Vanzetti, come before the State Supreme Court again on Tuesday and their executions have been delayed until August 22.

Vanzetti was in a cheerful mood today. He was up early in his new cell in the Cherry Hill section of the prison, preparing to spend the day in writing and reading. He took beef tea, coffee and milk for breakfast and having broken his hunger strike, will continue to take nourishment of soft foods for a few days.

WIFE PLEADS

Vanzetti was obliged to support Sacco last evening when the pair went to the barber shop for an interview with Attorney M. A. Musmanno, of Pittsburgh, a defense lawyer. On the walk from the death cells to the Cherry Hill station of the prison, Sacco walked beside Vanzetti, but stumbled when going up the steps at the end of the walk.

Sacco was on a self-imposed fast pleading of his wife, who visits him daily. "Nicola, please take some nourishment," she tells him daily. Each day he refuses.

Sacco has refused to listen to the for 31 days in Dedham jail. He was sent to Bridgewater State Insane Hospital, later being pronounced cured. The present hunger strike was begun in protest against the alleged secret method used by Gov. Alvan T. Fuller in conducting the review of the celebrated case.

While the condition of Sacco was giving grave concern defense lawyers were engaged in an intensive study preparing for the drive for a new Sacco and Vanzetti trial before the full bench of the State Supreme Court on Tuesday.

HEARING TUESDAY

Legal machinery has moved in record speed in the past few days in the case of the two men doomed to die for the slaying of a South Braintree paymaster and his guard back in 1920. Motions have been made for a new trial, for a stay and revocation of sentence, for a writ of error and for writs of habeas corpus in both state and Federal courts. All motions have been denied.

Judge Webster Thayer, storm center in the case, has allowed exceptions from his adverse rulings on a motion for a new trial. These exceptions go to the full bench of the State Supreme Court Tuesday.

At the same time the full bench will hear exceptions allowed by Supreme Court Judge George A. Sanderson to his denial of a writ of error. All court moves are based on the alleged prejudice of Trial Judge Thayer, found by an investigation committee of Gov. Fuller to have been "indiscreet" in conversations off the bench, but fair and impartial in the courtroom.

A large delegation of sponsors and admirers will accompany "Miss Huntington," Miss Lillian Ward, to the national beauty pageant in Atlantic City next month to watch her progress toward the "Miss America" goal.

"World" Fires Broun For Sacco Opinion

NEW YORK, Aug. 12—(AP.)—Ralph Pulitzer, editor of the New York World, in a signed statement in that paper today announced that articles by Heywood Broun, one of the standing features, had been discontinued because Broun insisted upon discussing the Sacco-Vanzetti case "after two articles in which he had expressed his personal opinion with utmost extravagance."

The last Broun article published, August 6, contained the following paragraph:

"From now on, I want to know, will the institution of learning at Cambridge, which once we called Harvard, be known as Hangman's House?"

Pickets before the state house in Boston Wednesday carried placards with another quotation from a previous article, which asserted "if all the venerable college presidents in the country tottered forward and pronounced the men guilty, they would still be innocent."

"The World has always believed in allowing the fullest possible expression of individual opinion to those of its special writers who write under their own names," said Mr. Pulitzer's statement. "Straining its interpretation of this privilege, the World allowed Mr. Broun to write two articles on the Sacco-Vanzetti case, in which he expressed his personal opinion with the utmost extravagance.

"The World then instructed him to, now that he had made his own position clear, to select other subjects for his next articles. Mr. Broun, however, continued to write on the Sacco-Vanzetti case. The World therefore, exercising its right of final decision as to what it will publish in its columns, has omitted all articles submitted by Mr. Broun.

Ruth Hale, president of the Lucy Stone League and Broun's wife, was one of the New Yorkers to go to Boston to picket the State House.

ORDINANCE WOULD BAN PARKING ON CHERRY WAY

Automobile parking is prohibited at all times on both sides of Cherry way from Fifth avenue to Water street and on the north side of Isabella street between Anderson and Federal streets from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. daily, except Sundays, according to an ordinance forwarded by Council today to Mayor Charles H. Kline.

HOMESTEAD MAN HELD UP AND ROBBED IN YARDS

While a Negro held a revolver to the head of Basile Karam, 36, of 348 Seventh street, Homestead, in the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad yards at Homestead today, another Negro stole Karam's pocketbook containing $64.96.

JOY-RIDERS TERRORIZE COUNTY; NAB 2

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., Aug. 12.—(AP.)—Two men are in jail today following a 24-hour search by police for a new type of joyriders—motorists who dashed through the Buckingham mountain section setting off dynamite blasts.

They left a trail of shattered windows and damaged property and routed scores of persons from their beds. Four explosions occurred along the 10-mile route of the midnight riders, for whom sticks of dynamite apparently furnished a new thrill-maker.

John Radcliffe and Michael McGarrity were those arrested. Both are employes of a stone quarry from which 14 sticks of dynamite were stolen.

The first blast wrecked the home of John Scarborough, but no one was injured. The second tore a 15-foot hole in the ground near the Booker T. Washington Country club, shattered the clubhouse windows, broke all the windows at the nearby home of Vincent Wilson and hurled his 14-year-old daughter from her bed. Other blasts occurred near a Negro church on top of Buckingham mountain and at the Frank Hellyer farm.

DIXON TO OPPOSE LORCH IN POOR DIRECTOR FIGHT

Charging that orders issued to the payroll by county organization leaders prevented county committee members from the Thirteenth District from indorsing him for re-election as director of the poor, H. H. Dixon has announced his intention of entering the primary as an independent candidate against Albert T. Lorch, Allison Park justice of the peace. Three directors are to be nominated at the Republican primary by voters in the county outside of Pittsburgh. The organization is supporting Lorch, Dr. W. L. Henderson and Maj. J. Clyde Miller.

ASKS WOMEN TO TAKE PART IN PRIMARY

"The more women who participate in this primary election for the judgeships, the better the result will be," said Judge James H. Gray, independent candidate for re-election, speaking today in the home of Mrs. D. Edwin Miller, Swissvale. Judge Gray urged support for Judges Richard W. Martin, Frank I. Gollmar and himself.

CHAPLIN GOES WEST TO FIGHT DIVORCE

"FIGHT TO FINISH"

Charlie, en route from New York to Los Angeles to contest Lita Grey's divorce suit against him, will "fight to finish" and instructed withdrawal of all offers for settlement out of court.

MRS. CHAPLIN AND CHILDREN

Lita Grey, with Charles, Jr. (left) and Sidney Earl, who seeks to divorce Chaplin. "I am weary of it all," Charlie says, "and will fight for my name and fortune. I do not care for the money, but I want my name cleared so my babies will be proud of it. I can easily disprove charges brought against me and I shall let the public decide my fate, for I am sure I shall be vindicated."

PILOTS AGREE ON TUESDAY TAKEOFF

AIRPORT, OAKLAND, Cal., Aug. 12.—(AP.)—The start of the James Dole $25,000 prize aerial derby from here to Hawaii today was postponed until next Tuesday noon by agreement among nine of the 11 entries already here.

The agreement was reached shortly after midnight, after a day of muddled planning, during which the original starting date was conditionally postponed two weeks, then declared on again, and finally set back until next Tuesday when the pilots took a hand in the matter.

The latest entry to be removed from the air derby is the twin motored triplane Spirit of Los Angeles, which crashed into San Francisco Bay yesterday while trying to land on the starting field.

Loses $4,000,000 and Calls It a Bargain

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—(AP.)—Although a loser by nearly $4,000,000 paper profits, wiped out in the collapse of a pool operating in Manhattan Electrical Supply Company shares, George A. Carden, a former attorney general of Texas, still thinks that he has a bargain in control of the company which rested in his hands today.

The drop of 60½ points yesterday in Manhattan Electric, a Stock Exchange record for recent years, cut almost in half the market value of the company's 130,000 shares, about 65,000 of which are believed to be held by Carden. The drastic decline was marked by wild confusion on the trading floor and was termed one of the most spectacular bear raids of recent times.

Although Carden declared in a formal statement that he "never bought a share for the purpose of enlarging its price," the recent advance in Manhattan Electric had caused Stock Exchange officials to launch an investigation as is customary where "technical corners" may exist. The apparent imminence of some official action was used to advantage by the short sellers who threw vast blocks of Manhattan Electric shares on the market.

THREE HURT WHEN AUTO HITS DUMMY POLICEMAN

When their automobile demolished a traffic standard at Sixth street and Braddock avenue, Braddock, today, George Kreppa, 25, of 70 Almeda street; Charles W. Cranstaner, 22, of 4624 Sylvan avenue, and George Jones, 19, of 605 Hazelwood avenue, were injured.

WEST VIRGINIA RAILROAD PICNIC TO BE HELD AUG. 20

Employes of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad will hold their annual picnic Saturday, August 20, at Greentree. W. E. Wood and H. J. Sheehan head the reception committee.

MARTIN TO QUIT IF BAR'S VOTE REJECTS HIM

Unless the poll now being conducted by the Allegheny County Bar Association reveals that a "substantial percentage" of the attorneys believe he should be returned to the bench, Judge Richard W. Martin, independent candidate to succeed himself, will retire from the field.

Judge Martin made that announcement at noon in his headquarters, 328 Fourth avenue.

"On the other hand, if the bar of this county does indorse me I can confidently ask the people of Allegheny county why I am opposed for re-election and why a slate is made which does not contain my name. If the lawyers are satisfied with me, what secret motive moves others to seek my defeat?"

At noon today more than 1,000 attorneys had sent in their ballots in the Bar Association "straw vote." It is estimated that about 500 others are eligible to participate.

"Miss Pittsburgh 1927" Selected Tomorrow

Who will be "Miss Pittsburgh 1927?"

Tomorrow brings the answer.

Ninety-two girls of Greater Pittsburgh, finalists selected by 23 leading motion picture theaters, will be judged at The Willows pool, Oakmont, and one of their number crowned the new beauty queen. Another entrant will carry away the distinction of being the reigning beauty's alternate, while 23 leading contenders will wear the crowns of "Miss (name of theaters)" thereby winning nine-day vacation trips to Atlantic City and Washington.

A gala program will mark the close of the most pretentious quest ever conducted locally for a beauty queen. The features of the day's events will be a street parade through the downtown district at noon, the judging of the contestants during the afternoon and a special program at The Willows at night for the presentation of a loving cup to the newly titled beauty. Seating arrangements have been made for 6,000 spectators at the afternoon event.

The contestants' busy day will begin in the morning. The finalists will gather at the Buick Motor Company's salesroom, Baum boulevard and Aiken avenue, at 10:30 o'clock, where they will be registered and assigned their places in the tournament. A parade of approximately $75,000 worth of the latest model cars will carry the girls from the East End headquarters to the downtown section and thence to Oakmont. A buffet lunch will await the finalists at the Oakmont resort.

The judging is scheduled to begin promptly at 1:30 o'clock when five judges will begin eliminations for the selection of "Miss Pittsburgh" and her alternate. A second set of judges, numbering three men, will pass upon the girls in sets of four entrants, this being the number of representatives sent by each of the participating theaters. The latter judges will award the individual theater titles, which bring the winners the seashore trips.

Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell will be master of ceremonies in the afternoon tournament. The identity of the judges, prominent men in art circles, will be announced tomorrow by Price A. Mansfield, chairman of the 1927 "Miss Pittsburgh" Committee.

Chairman Mansfield today denied a rumor reported circulating throughout the city naming a particular entrant as already having been chosen to be crowned the beauty queen. Many public spirited citizens, interested in the fairness which marks the beauty quest, telephoned committee headquarters to report the rumor, stating the report is circulated as being expressed by the girl's relatives. Inasmuch, the complete roster of judges has not as yet been named, Mr. Mansfield pointed out the rumor is absurd.

Reserved seat and general admission tickets are now on sale. They are available at the A. G. Spalding & Bros. store, 608 Wood street, downtown, and at the Oakmont pool. The Green Cab Company has arranged special rates for the day from various points in the city, while the Pittsburgh Railways Company announces additional street car service will be available on the Verona route from Wilkinsburg.

The newly crowned beauty queen, with her alternate and the 23 trip winners, will be honor guests tomorrow night at The Willows. "Miss Pittsburgh" will be given a silver loving cup, the presentation of which will be made by Councilman Harry A. Little. The cup will be a gift from Max Unger, jeweler, 976 Liberty avenue.

Mrs. Roosevelt, widow of William O. Roosevelt, died June 20 at Chestnut Hill, N. Y. Her brother and sisters are S. J. Brent of Alexandria, Va.; Mrs. B. B. Owens, Winston-Salem, N. C.; Mrs. Robert T. Thorp, Norfolk, Va., and Mrs. Charles Read, New York.

SLIDES RAZING MOUNTAIN

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo., Aug. 12—(AP.)—Slowly crumpling and losing its bulk in tremendous rock slides, a large mountain 10 miles north of here has stirred tourists with its phenomenal movements.

Millions of tons of earth and boulders have tumbled into a canyon below the rocky giant. Nearby Fremont lake, with huge deposits of rocks in its bed from the slides, has overflowed and another lake is being formed. The main slide was reported a half mile wide.

George Reddick, Omaha capitalist, owner of a summer home near Fremont lake, said today he observed 12 distinct movements in a day. The noise of the rock tumbling 1,000 feet down the mountain side was distinctly audible to L. W. Sargent at Daniel, Wyo., 14 miles away.

RAPID CITY, Aug. 12—(AP.)—Nelson T. Johnson of Oklahoma was appointed by President Coolidge to be assistant secretary of state. He succeeds Robert E. Olds, who was recently appointed under-secretary of state when Joseph C. Grew was named ambassador to Turkey.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 12—(AP.)—Henry Calenski, 11, of Monessen, was drowned in the Monongahela river while watching divers seeking to recover the body of Stephen Hoftojak, 11, of Donora, drowned Tuesday. The boy has waded into the river to gain a better view of the divers' operations. He stepped into deep water and was drowned.

COSGRAVE REIGN MENACED BY DE VALERA

By PATRICIA HOEY.

Universal Service Staff Correspondent

DUBLIN, Aug. 12.—The Irish political pot has boiled over again.

Eamonn De Valera and the Fianna Fail deputies have gone through the formality of accepting the oath of allegiance that enables them to take their seats in the Dail Eireann. They were introduced by Thomas Johnson, leader of the Labor party, and Capt. William Redmond of the National League group.

This action is believed to seal the fate of the Cosgrave government, which is expected to resign within the next twenty-four hours.

The plan of the new political combination is to elect Johnson chief of the cabinet council, which automatically makes him president. The price the Labor party is paying for Fianna Fail support in the Dail is an agreement to open negotiations with the British government to have the present form of oath removed entirely or amended. The whole political situation is regarded as so unstable that a new general election is likely to be called within a short time.

It is understood that there will be no Republicans in the proposed new cabinet, although Johnson and De Valera have committed themselves to continue the existing form of government.

BLONDE BEAUTY RAPS VERDICT

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 12.—(AP.)—Beauty is going to court in Philadelphia and brunet, defendant, versus blonde, complainant, will be the essentials of a more commonplace legal terminology.

The brunet, Miss Kathleen Coyle, at the moment has no advantage. After a recent beauty contest she was declared "Miss Philadelphia," recognized by the mayor, and entered in the Atlantic City beauty pageant. The blonde, Miss Pichelberger, asserts she will bring suit against the management of the contest, contending that the judging was unfair and incompetent. She was an unsuccessful entry.

"The judges were not judges of beauty at all," she declared, "and out of fairness to the other competitors I am going to ask the courts to restrain the management of the contest from sending the adjudged winner to Atlantic City as the official representative of thousands of attractive young women in Philadelphia."

Illustrators for Philadelphia newspapers were the judges whose choice is assailed.

MOTOR SAFETY CAMPAIGN OPENED

A "safety for motorists" campaign has been instituted by the Pittsburgh Motor Club with the purpose of preventing fatal accidents.

Records of the coroner show 92 fatal accidents in Pittsburgh during the first six months of 1927, as compared with 61 during the same period in 1926. Twenty-two of those killed were children. This is an increase of 51 per cent.

It is the opinion of traffic authorities that the majority of fatal accidents are caused by excessive speed or reckless driving while under the influence of liquor. The figures show 61 per cent of the fatalities occurred between 6 p. m. and 1 a. m., which is said to indicate that, since traffic is not heavy after the late rush hour, speed and recklessness caused the accidents.

MEXICO DEPORTS U. S. WRITER

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—Joseph De Courcey, Mexico City correspondent for the New York Times is being deported from that republic, according to advices to the State Department today.

The department received a cablegram from H. F. Arthur Schoenfeld, American charge d'affaires that De Courcey was arrested by agents of the Mexican department of the interior on August 9 and was being held without any specific charges being preferred against him. An agent of the American embassy visited him in his cell and later filed a protest with the Mexican foreign office, Schoenfeld added.

Later the department received a telegram from De Courcey saying that he was on his way to Laredo, Texas. It was presumed that De Courcey is being expelled under the clause in the Mexican constitution which permits deportation of any alien.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland, M.D.
U.S. Senator from New York

STOMACH WILL SERVE ONE HUNDRED YEARS

WHEN a friend of mine was told about an operation for the removal of a large part of the stomach, he said a funny thing. "The stomach is not a vital organ. It is merely a victual organ!"

DR. COPELAND

But of course the stomach is a vital organ. It has most important work to do. It does not complete the digestive process, as many persons appear to believe it does. But it has essential work to do.

The stomach is an organ of considerable size. It is about a foot long and four inches thick in its largest part. Its capacity is flexible, depending on the demand for space. The maximum is about two quarts. In shape the stomach is like a bagpipe or an immense pear. Imagine a pear lying on its side, with the large end to the left. This gives you an idea of how the organ is placed in the middle of the abdomen.

The gullet is a passageway about a foot long. This runs from the back of the throat and opens in the thick end—the cardiac end—of the stomach.

The gullet is known to the doctors as the oesophagus. It is not an open passageway like a piece of iron pipe. When not in use it collapses, like the inner tube of an automobile tire without air.

When a mouthful of food is swallowed, the muscular walls of the gullet contract with a stripping or milking movement. This forces the food from above down into the stomach.

In this organ the food is acted upon by the gastric or stomach juices. It is softened and reduced to a uniform, soft mass and then, by the addition of the stomach fluids, becomes a liquid.

The more you chew your food and the finer it is divided, the more readily the stomach can deal with it. In any event, it will take two and a half to four hours for the stomach treatment to be completed.

The exit from the stomach is at its small end. This is called the pylorus, or pyloric end. The name given this place of escape from the stomach is from a Greek word, meaning "gatekeeper." It is an appropriate name because there is a valve or gate at this point. This retains the stomach contents until they are ready for their progress into the intestines.

He is a wise man who never makes a plaything of his stomach, and never puts in it anything of an indigestible nature. With proper care in the selection of foods and good sense in the manner of living, this faithful organ will serve you for a hundred years.

Follow This Rule
To keep the charm of "That Schoolgirl Complexion"
By NORMA SHEARER

NEVER try unproved methods in skin care. Not when simple proved rules exist that beauty experts agree on.

Today a nightly habit of thousands of women is responsible for complexions more beautiful than any other country boasts. One week's test yourself will prove its results. It is the way that millions have acquired that schoolgirl complexion.

Just do this before you go to bed at night. Wash the face gently with Palmolive. Massage its balmy olive and palm oil lather into the skin. Rinse with warm water; then with cold. That is all—it's nature's rule for keeping that schoolgirl complexion.

If your skin is inclined to be naturally dry, apply a little good cold cream.

Do that regularly, and particularly at night. Note how much better your skin in even one week.

GET REAL PALMOLIVE

Costs but 10¢ a cake. Use no other on your face. But be sure you get GENUINE Palmolive. Crude imitations, represented to be of olive and palm oils, are not the same as Palmolive. Remember that and TAKE CARE. The Palmolive-Peet Co., Chicago, U. S. A.

PLANE TO DROP MAIL ON SHIP 500 MILES OUT

OCEAN DELIVERY BY FLIER IS PLANNED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—The first delivery of mail by airplane to a liner at sea was in prospect today following announcement of plans developed by the Shipping Board, the Postoffice Department and the Navy Department.

As a sequel to Clarence D. Chamberlin's feat of carrying mail ashore in an airplane launched from a specially constructed runway on the steamship Leviathan, it is now proposed that an attempt be made to put mail on board the vessel when some 500 miles from New York on an outward-bound voyage.

Lieut. Clarence H. Schildhauer, Navy flier, has been selected as the aviator. Under present plans he will fly from Squantum, Mass., with mail forwarded from New York, intercept the vessel at sea and return to Squantum, the attempt entailing a flight of about 800 miles over water. It is now expected that the mail sacks will be suspended below the plane by lines and dropped onto the decks of the ship.

When the Leviathan arrives off New York on her present westward passage, a test in practice is to be made. The actual delivery of mail is scheduled for August 21.

MOONSHINE RUM PARTY FATAL

One man was found dead and eight others stupefied around a five-gallon can which had contained moonshine whisky on the Allegheny river bank at the foot of Twenty-seventh street by police, at dawn today. The body of the dead man, aged about 50, was removed to the morgue where death was pronounced due to acute alcoholism. The eight others were locked up in the Penn avenue station on charges of drunkenness.

GROOM GOES AFTER GAS; BRIDE IS STILL WAITING

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 12.—(AP)—Henry Brandow, 31, a bridegroom of two weeks, left his bride in an automobile which had run out of gasoline on a street here. He said he was going to walk to the nearest filling station. Two hours later police found the bride alone in the car, sobbing. Brandow has not returned.

SEEK BOY AFTER FATAL CRASH

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 12 (Special.)—A search was under way here today for Francis Ohler, 15, as a result of an automobile accident yesterday in which David Ritchey, 66, of Poplar Grove, and Henry McClelland, 41, of Moyer, were killed.

Ohler, Sherman Mason, 15, Jean Munk, 15, daughter of Alderman Fred Munk and Catherine Ludy, 16, all of Connellsville, were riding in an automobile on the Scottdale and Connellsville road when the machine swerved and hit a pole. The car bounded back to the road and struck Ritchey and McClelland who were working on the highway.

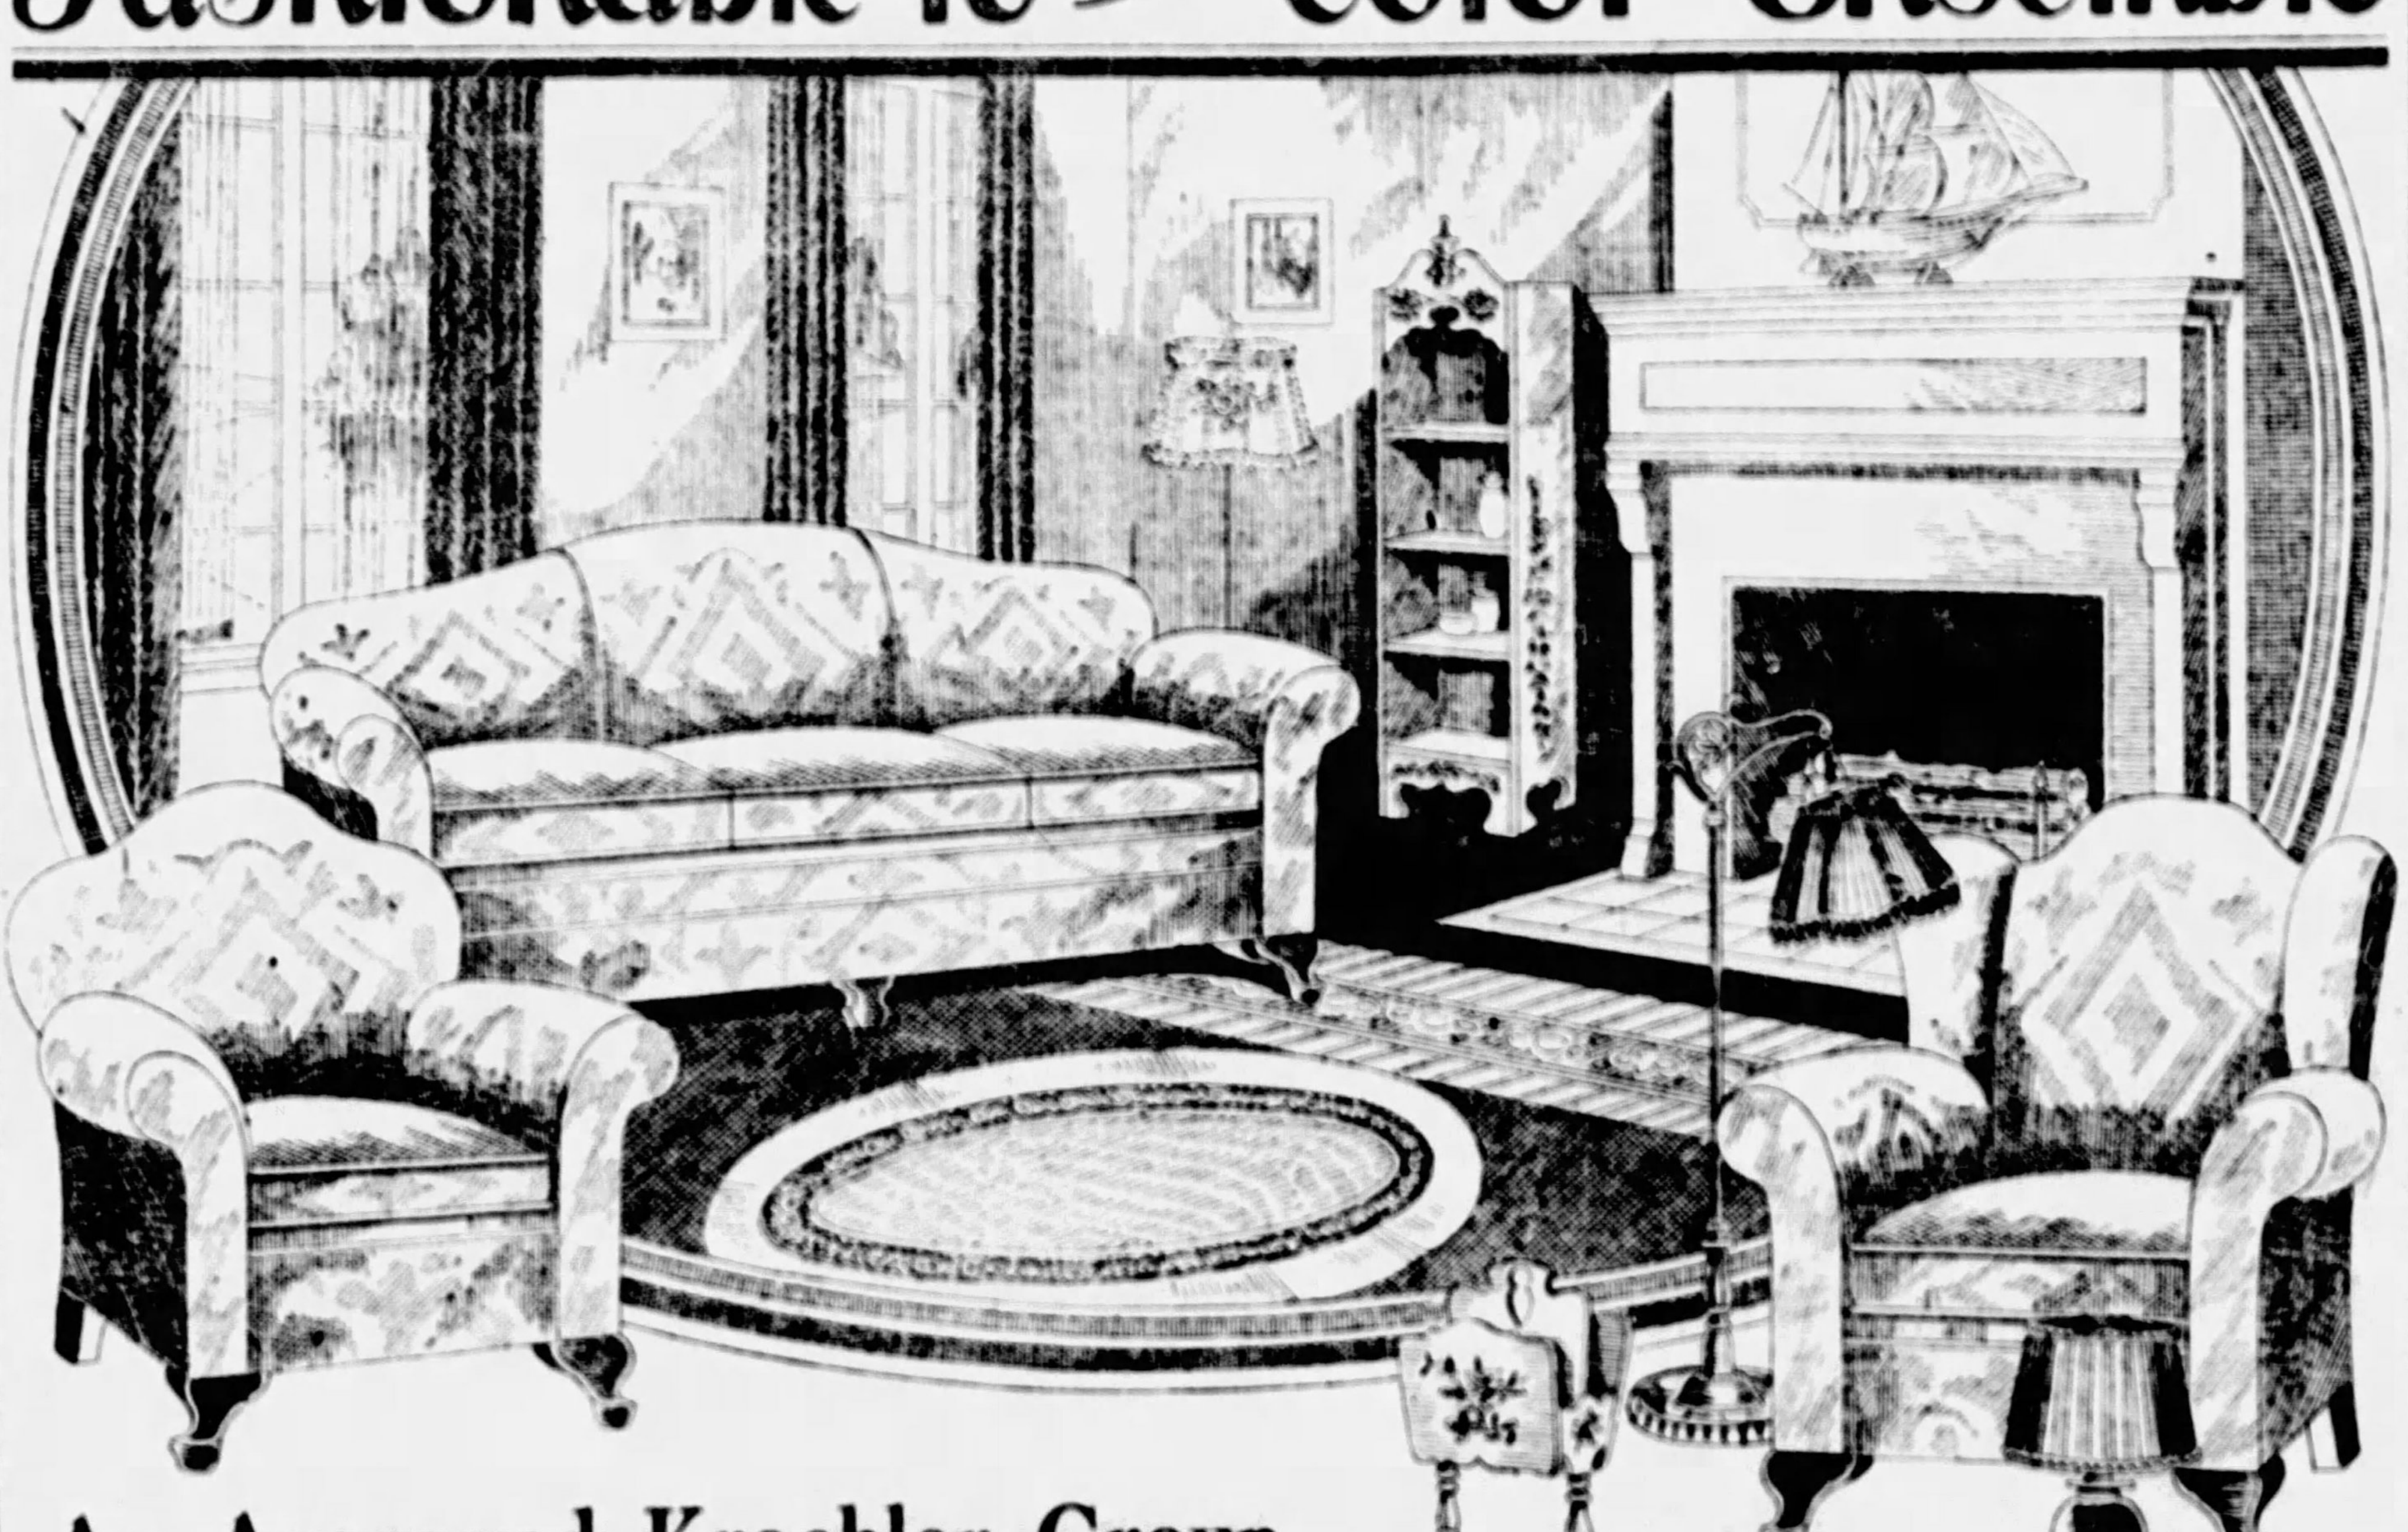
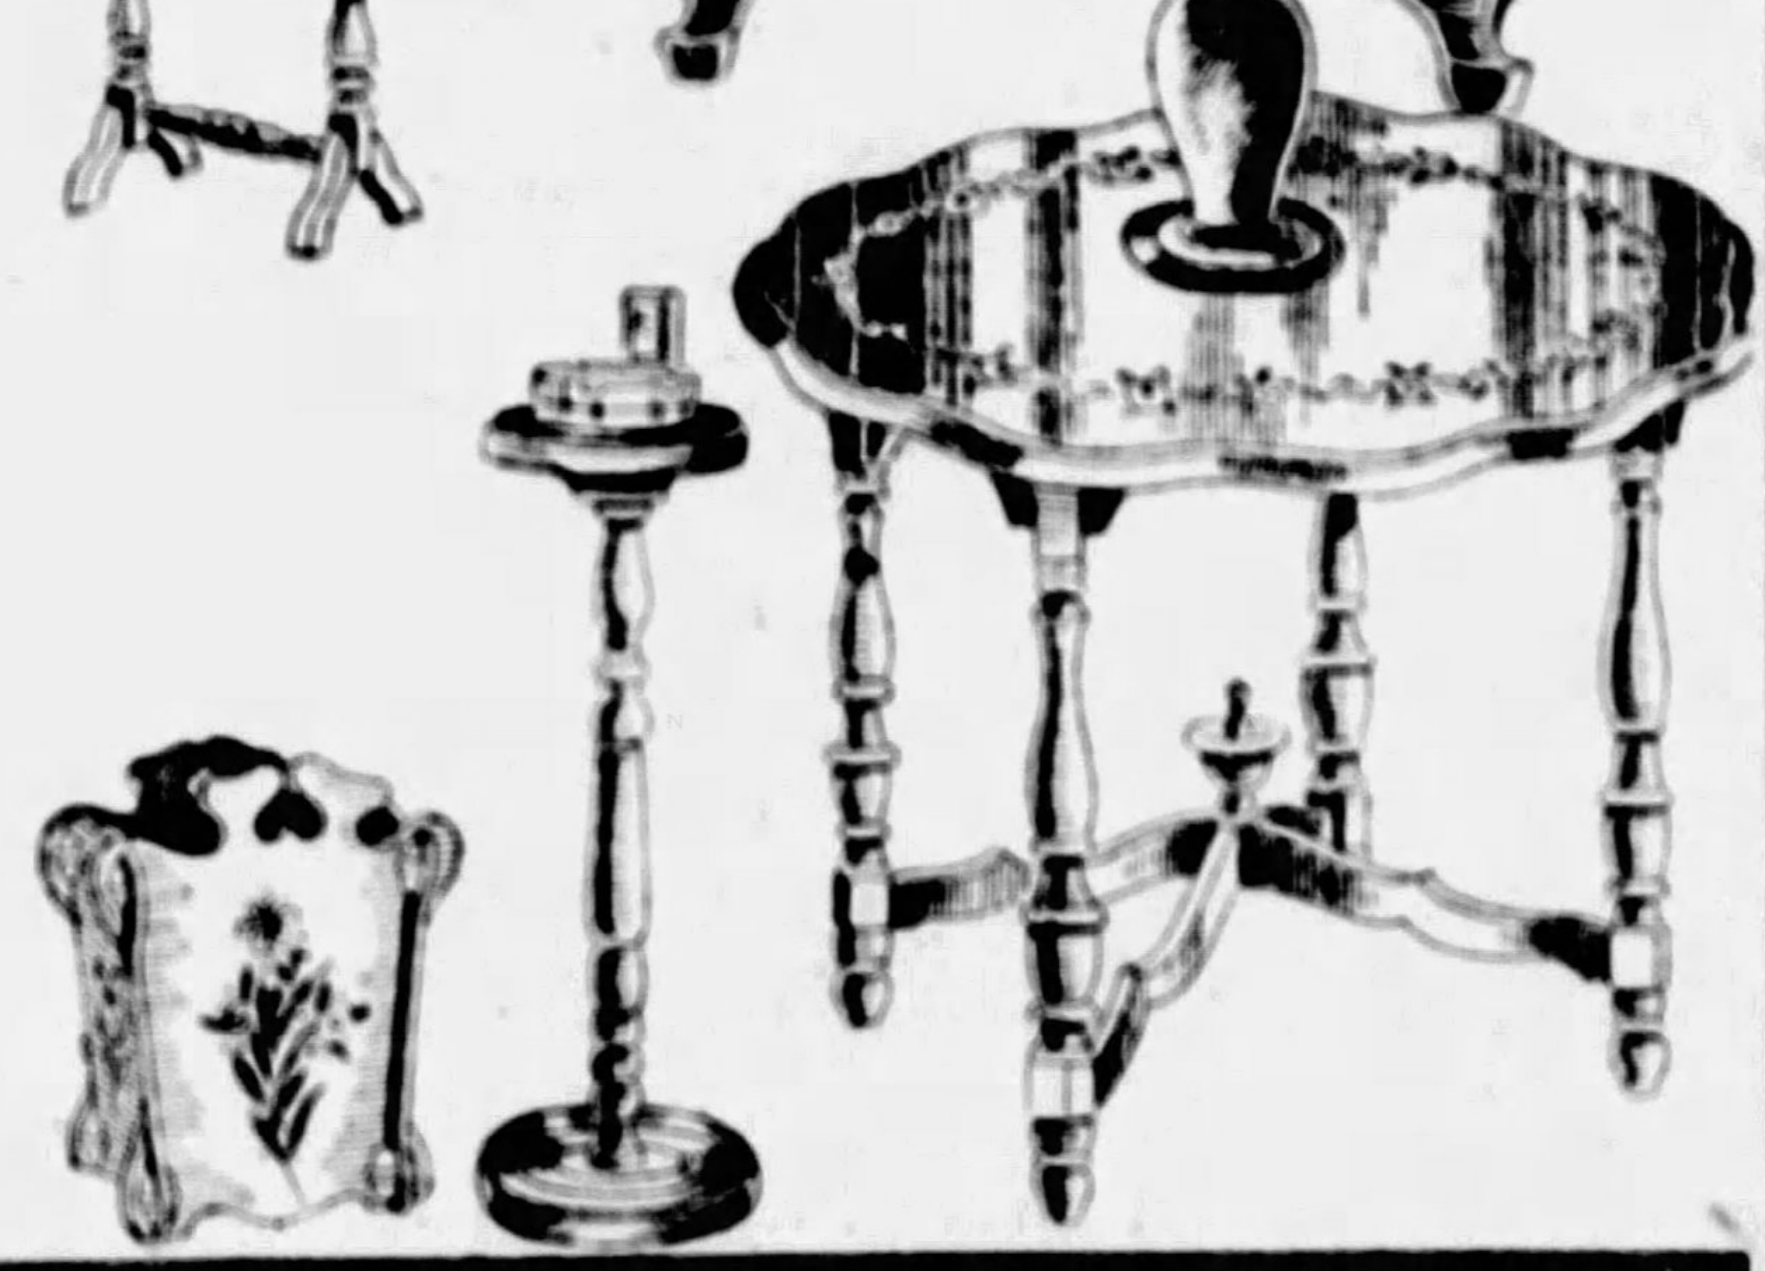
Fashionable 10 Piece Color Ensemble



An Approved Kroehler Group

A Livingroom—And An Added Bedroom



$165

10 Colorful Pieces:

Bed-Davenport
Club Chair
Fireside Chair
Pier Cabinet
Bridge Lamp
Occasional Table
Pedestal Smoker
Magazine Rack
Paper Receptacle
Table Lamp

A VERITABLE symphony of color—this bewitching livingroom so fashionable in its myriad of tints giving piquancy and life! A room completely furnished with matched pieces lacks distinction—it is the unexpected touch of color—gayly hued and decorated occasional pieces that enliven the home. Such a smart and irresistible grouping we picture herewith. It features a magnificent rose and taupe jacquard covered Kroehler bed-davenport suite, sumptuously and luxuriously built along neat, dignified lines. The davenport has the Nachman spring construction; it opens with a single motion into a full-size bed—though your overnight guests will never suspect it conceals sleeping accommodations.

That color is the vogue, the unquestioned decree of Fashion, is evidenced by the cheerful, charming hues of the occasional pieces, particularly the stately Pier Cabinet obtainable in either Chinese red or Nile green. These tints, too, beautify the occasional table, paper receptacle and magazine rack, and all are hand-decorated. The vividly colored shade of the bridge lamp and the table lamp adds to the tasteful effect and the pedestal smoker completes the grouping. This grouping at a marked August Sale saving.

WEATHER HALTS ATLANTIC AIR RACE

PARIS, Aug. 12. — Unfavorable weather caused postponement of the start of the transatlantic air race which had been set tentatively for today.

Charles A. Levine, owner of the Columbia, changed his mind several times last night and early today, first saying he would start, then that he wouldn't, then that he would, and finally that he wouldn't.

The final decision was made at 2 a. m., after Dieudonne Costes announced that he would not start today in his Breguet plane.

In spite of poor weather, Levine had been determined that no other plane would get a start on him. Coates' decision was welcomed by Levine, who hoped that the weather would clear up.

CROWD DISAPPOINTED

Rumor brought a small gallery of enthusiastic flight fans out to Le Bourget flying field early this morning in the hope of seeing one, two or perhaps three planes take off for New York, but they had their vigil for nothing. Neither pilot, navigator nor passenger appeared.

Coste's airplane, which is known as the "Nungesser-Coli," has become the favorite aviation experts in the race for westward transatlantic honors.

ELLSWORTH AVE. BRIDGE DRAWINGS ORDERED

Director Edward G. Lang, of the Department of Works, today ordered the completion of drawings for replacements for Ellsworth Avenue Bridge over the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks, as authorized by an emergency ordinance signed by Mayor Charles H. Kline and Controller John M. Henderson, and passed by the votes of the nine members of Council. The estimated cost is [illegible]. An ordinance on Mayor Kline's desk authorizes the widening of Broad street to 60 feet between Highland and Negley avenues.

BEGGED BY MAIL FOR LIVING; NABBED

LANSDALE, Pa., Aug. 11.—(P.)—The government has called a halt to the flood of begging letters alleged to have been sent through the mails by Benjamin Miller, and which were said to have netted him a comfortable income for many years.

Miller, a partially paralyzed former coal miner, with his wife and 21-year-old son, lives in a cozy two-story house. The Postoffice Department issued a fraud order against him.

Miller was reported to have been buying $200 worth of stamped envelopes monthly to send out his appeals.

In his letters, postal officials said, Miller states that he has not been out of bed for two years, and that he is trying to raise money to buy appliances and a reclining chair. Investigation, they said, revealed that he had a wheel chair and among his possessions was an automobile equipped with a bed for his use.

Shocking! Gasps London At Photo of Wales In Stiff Hat

LONDON, Aug. 11.—(AP.)—Fashionable London has been shocked by photographs showing the Prince of Wales in Canada wearing a hard straw hat.

For 40 years this hasn't been done in polite British circles.

Only Harrow schoolboys, Smithfield meat porters and American tourists now wear straw hats, but since the Prince of Wales has donned one, Bond street and Piccadilly fashion experts are wondering whether soft felts will make way for straws next summer.

MAYOR GETS 425-FT. SKYSCRAPER ORDINANCE

Expected to Approve Increased Height

Council today forwarded to Mayor Charles H. Kline for consideration of an ordinance, passed finally by the unanimous votes of the nine members, amending the zoning law so as to permit the erection of buildings 425 feet high instead of the 265-foot restriction imposed by the original ordinance. The increased height will be effected by the erection of towers or setbacks containing space for commercial use.

Mayor Kline is expected to approve the bill, although it met mild opposition from the City Planning Commission.

When the ordinance becomes a law, two new buildings will be erected in the downtown triangle, the Grant Building, Incorporated, on Grant street between Third and Fourth avenues, and the Koppers Company building at Grant street and Seventh avenue.

Miss Sara Evelyn Hambly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hambly, was married Tuesday evening in St. Luke's Church to Lee Gibson of Melbourne street, Squirrel Hill. The occasion was also the fiftieth anniversary of the wedding of the bride's parents. Miss Jane Hambly, sister of the bride, was her only attendant, and Thomas Hanlon of Edmond street was best man. After a wedding supper, Mr. and Mrs. Gibson left for a lake trip. They will be at home September 1 in Dearborn street.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Beatrice Ingley of Crafton and Joseph Salisbury of Sheridan, which took place last Wednesday morning in the Church of the Nativity, in Crafton. The officiating minister was the Rt. Rev. Fred Ingley, bishop coadjutor of the diocese of Colorado, brother of the bride, who was assisted by the rector of the Church of the Nativity, the Rev. E. J. Harry. Only the immediate families were present at the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Farnsworth of Monessen, the latter a sister of the bride, were the only attendants. Howard A. Ingley, a brother of the bride, played the wedding music. Mr. and Mrs. Salisbury left on a two weeks' trip in the East and will be at home in Sheridan after September 1.

INGOMAR CLUB SEASON TO OPEN SEPTEMBER 8

The Woman's Club of Ingomar will begin its 1928-29 season on September 8 with president's day in the home of Mrs. C. A. Bardolph at Perrymont. Mrs. Harry Bright will be joint hostess and a piano recital will be given by Miss Lucille Ter-Bush. At the club's picnic held yesterday at the home of Mrs. W. P. Craig, the program plans for next year were announced by the program chairman, Mrs. A. C. Weber. For the October meeting home safety will be discussed and the talk will be illustrated by motion pictures. W. S. Brotzman, the weather forecaster, will tell the women at the November meeting how the weather bureau works and at the December session Mrs. Anna Marshall McCracken will revisit the club to give her interesting "Christmas in Song and Picture and Story," a talk that was much enjoyed by several other organizations last season. January 12 will bring John A. Hollinger, director of visual education in the Pittsburgh public schools, and Mrs. D. Edwin Miller, chairman of the education department of the Congress of Clubs, both of whom will speak and will exhibit films. Mrs. Edith Maize, visitor popular with the Ingomar organization, will furnish a book review as the feature for February and in March there will be a talk on international relations. The club play in April probably will be made the occasion for an evening meeting at which the husbands of members will be their guests. A talk on "The Soul of the Home," by Mrs. John M. Phillips, founder and honorary president of the Mothers' Club of Carrick, on May 10, will conclude the program meetings and the year will be ended with the business meeting on June 10. Among the musicians who will appear before the club will be Mrs. Walter Close and Miss Sarah Jamison Logan.

The picnic yesterday was in charge of the retiring program committee of which Mrs. Bardolph is chairman, and brings the present season to a close.

"Sally's Shoulders" Teems With Interest

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Pretty, black-haired Betty Warren is engaged to Bob Stevenson. She is the main support of her widowed mother and sisters. She accepts attentions from Anson Lorrimer, wealthy author. Bob is jealous. Lorrimer gets her a better job and she meets Harry Martin, who becomes engaged to her sister Gladys. Betty does not suspect Lorrimer of evil intentions until they are alone and she is rescued just in time by Harry. Lorrimer apologizes. She forgives and forgets him when she makes up with Bob. Betty's sister Helen goes into the movies, gets a part in a Lorrimer picture and Lorrimer uses their studio contract to renew friendship with Betty. Lorna May, an old flame of Lorrimer, jealous of his admiration for Betty, plants a pearl necklace in Betty's handbag, where it is found. Helen and her admirer, Peter Lessways, expose the trick. Betty is vindicated. Lessways goes home with the girls and makes progress in his courtship of Helen.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

Helen Plays a Hunch and Wins, Releasing Betty From Lorna's Net

THERE was an instant of terrible silence. Then a babel of voices arose.

Lorna looked at Betty with evil triumph in her wide blue eyes.

"Well, what have you to say?

Betty's world was crashing about her ears. She had all the horror and impotence of the innocent proven guilty.

"Only that it is my handbag," she answered, "and that those are, I suppose, your pearls. But I did not take them, Miss May."

Lorrimer was white with excitement. If Betty had taken the pearls she was certainly delivered into his hands . . . something on which Lorna had not counted.

In the midst of the excitement, Helen got to her feet and her clear young voice rang through the room.

"Listen, everybody!" she cried. "Listen . . . Betty didn't take the pearls. I saw Lorna May put them herself in Betty's handbag."

Another silence and then a torrent of voices. Lorna turned white, turned red. She looked like a cat, a cat that clawed and spat and scratched with rage.

"You—you little liar," she screamed at Helen.

Helen whitened but stood her ground. As a matter of fact she had seen nothing of the sort. But she knew Betty was innocent. As the pearls had been found in Betty's handbag, someone must have put them there. Who? No one, Helen deducted, but Lorna.

Peter Lessways rose at her side. His hand caught her hand. Her heart turned to him in that moment, never to turn away from him again while they two lived.

"This has been," he remarked casually, "a very bad practical joke. With all due respect to our hostess I saw at once it was in the worst possible taste. For I saw Miss May put the pearls in Miss Warren's handbag."

He had seen nothing . . . nothing . . . but he would back the child to the limit.

Lorna, her scheme crashing about her, was shaking and crying and sobbing incoherencies and insults at the head of the table.

Lessways looked toward Lorrimer, who was now trying to convince his neighbors that "of course it was a joke."

"Listen," he whispered to Helen, "we must get Betty away from here—quickly."

They went to Betty who was still standing there rigid, and touched her arm. She looked wildly about her, burst into tears and fainted dead away in Peter's alert arms.

Easily, as if she had been a child, he lifted her and carried her out of the room. Lorrimer came forward fussily.

"Can I help?"

"Yes," answered Helen, "you can keep out of the way—for good."

One of the outsiders, a well known producer, advised, "my apartment is on this floor. Shall we go there?"

In a few minutes Lessways had deposited Betty on a bed in Mr. Richardson's apartment, and Mr. Richardson's sister, middle-aged and pleasant, set to work restoring Betty to consciousness.

When she opened her eyes, "you lie there," Lessways said—"and cry a little if you want to. Helen and I are going back to get your wraps and we'll soon be on our way home. Don't worry, Betty. It's all over."

After getting their things, Lessways stopped dead in the hall.

"Helen, did you really see Lorna take the pearls and put them in Betty's handbag?"

"No," she admitted—"did you?"

"I did not. Oh, you dear little liar. But it's Saint Elizabeth and the roses all over again. I don't believe you lied. Or that I did either. Lorna was weeping in our friend Lorrimer's arms and howling that it was all a joke."

"I—I haven't thanked you," stammered Helen.

"You needn't—not now. Some day I'll claim a reward it will take you all the rest of your life to pay," he warned her, and laughed, as he saw the flush rise to her cheeks. "Come—let's go and get Betty."

They found Betty recovered, and with thanks to their emergency hosts, they left the apartment house.

Back in Lorna's dwelling, Lorna was clinging to Lorrimer.

"Lorry, Lorry," she wept, "I did it for you. I love you, Lorry. I have always loved you. I hated that girl—I loathed her. I wanted to kill her. I thought that if you

PIRATES "ROOT" FOR MISS LARSON

By ALFHILD LARSON, Pittsburgh's Queen of Fashion.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 12—We missed the ball game between our Pirates and the Cardinals yesterday and I was very disappointed. Plans of the fashion pageant committee interfered. But we have arranged to see the games both Saturday and Sunday.

Chilly Doyle phoned and offered congratulations and the boys of the team sent their best wishes for the success of Pittsburgh in the style show. They say they are going to come out some evening this week and root for me. That will help.

Again last night the applause I received was amazing. St. Louis people say it is most unusual because of the number of out-of-town buyers in the crowds who live in the South and Southwest. With few here from Pittsburgh, it is quite flattering that every night the hand they give me is a storm compared with what the other girls get.

FEELS LIKE VETERAN

I am beginning to feel like a veteran in the show business. The lights, applause, dazzling clothes—it is getting into my blood. I want to be a real trouper. If I win the title of National Queen of Fashion it may be the beginning of an interesting career. I sincerely hope so.

Before I came here my ambition had been slumbering. But now I feel I must get out and do big things and see the world.

Yesterday afternoon we had another theater party. Today we have a gay round of entertainment planned.

SHERADEN ELKS WAIVE HEARING ON DRY CHARGES

Four members of Sheraden Lodge, B. P. O. Elks waived hearing before the United States Commissioner yesterday for court trials on charges of possession of intoxicating liquor. They are Ralph Millchar, steward, and Nick Maurer, Harry Golby and Paul Eektler, members of the house committee. Each posted bond of $500. The Sheraden lodge was one of 19 Elks clubrooms raided by prohibition agents July 2.

"HELLO FOLKS"----SALLY

SHE'LL MEET YOU MONDAY IN THE SUN-TELEGRAPH

"CAN'T TRUST DEAREST FRIENDS, IF WRITERS"

Not in person, of course. But in "Sally's Shoulders," Beatrice Burton's newest serial which begins Monday in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. You can imagine Sally at the telephone saying: "It all happened this way: Beatrice Burton is a friend of mine; has been for years. Little did I think when I'd see her taking notes on a little pad every time she'd come on a friendly call that she was thinking of putting me in a novel. Honestly, you can't trust your dearest friends when writing is their profession. * * * (Just a minute, operator, I'm talking with Pittsburgh) * * * Yes, I'm connected, thank you. What! Time's up, operator says. See you Monday. Goodby."

RUSH AIRPLANE CONTEST ENTRY

Boys and girls of Western Pennsylvania who would enter the National Aircraft Model Contest being conducted by the Bureau of Recreation and the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph had better hurry.

Those who have already entered should hurry their friends.

For the day will be here soon when the entries must be closed. It will be announced Monday. The task is now to rush entries in, and keep working on your plane so that it will be finished in time to enter the district finals—slated for August 24.

The new plane instructions start today on the fiction page. Those who would build this type, watch carefully. When the instruction on this model is finished, the instruction letters will end.

Boys who can purchase materials they want should go ahead. Get the best looking and most efficient plane possible. For if the design and efficiency are good, the national committee may select some of the Western Pennsylvania boys to go to Memphis.

There are 50 boys, to be chosen by the national committee, headed by Lindy himself and Orville Wright and others. If Pittsburgh is not represented, it will mean that boys in other places are more clever.

See illustrated stories on fiction page, and entry blanks.

BRING SAILOR'S BODY HOME

A victim of rum runners in a battle off the coast of Florida, the body of Victor A. Lamby, 24, will be brought back to his widowed mother, Mrs. Charlotte Lamby, of 449 Charles way, Braddock. Young Lamby was a member of the coast guard, having enlisted in this service in New York a year ago.

Lamby was serving as a motor machinist on the cutter CG-294 when it encountered the rum boat 35 miles southeast of Florida, near the Bahama Islands.

WILKINSBURG CHILDREN HELP MILK AND ICE FUND

As a benefit for The Sun-Telegraph Milk and Ice Fund a show was given by a band of children living in the neighborhood of Mill street, Wilkinsburg, who, by their efforts have raised $3.55 to help the babies. The youngsters were Dorothy Tupper, Phyllis Meyer, Dorothy Holben, Annie Chinn, Buddy Holben, Philip Chinn, Frank Linen, Lloyd Linen, Evelyn Linen and Betty Hazlett. Mrs. Hazel Younis has contributed $2 and the fund stands to date at a total of $1,912.15.

HUNGRY, STEALS HAY, THEN TRIES TO SELL IT

Because he was hungry, J. S. Gmyis, 26, of 2737 Mission street, "borrowed" a horse, wagon, two bales of hay and a bag of oats from the stable of a former employer, J. L. Clark, at South Twenty-fourth and Josephine streets and tried to sell the feed. Gmyis told police he wanted money to buy food. In South Side Police Court today Magistrate J. J. Sweeney invited the prisoner to pay a $10 fine or spend 10 days in jail.

MY SON'S SWEETHEARTS

By Ida McGlone Gibson

HE WOULD own a new roadster in the morning. He called Nonnie and made her hunt up a calendar for him. He found it would be moonlight tomorrow night. Exultantly he felt again the blood pounding his temples and his heart beating fast. This was something like it. Again he called Nonnie to make sure that his mother was still out.

She told him that she had just received a message from Mrs. Tracy saying she would not be home for dinner.

Taking the receiver off the hook, he called "long distance" for Lyra Hilliard. In a half hour, while he sat there waiting, hardly moving a muscle, the bell rang.

"Here's your party," said central. "Lyra? Is that you?"

She recognized his voice before he gave his name.

"Philip, my dear boy, you cannot tell how glad I am to hear your voice! If you only knew how I have longed to hear from you all these years, you would have written if just a little note to let me know that you were still alive."

The word "Philip" wiped out all the rest of Lyra's long, hurried speech. Another woman was calling him "Philip" who had once called him "Wynne." Was he to lose all his sweethearts? He well remembered the night that Natlee had heard her tell him she was going to do so, and had herself told him she would never call him "Wynne" again. He tried to remember if Natlee had called him "Philip" this morning, and for the life of him he could not do it.

The fact that Lyra was calling him "Philip" was a certainty, however, and he almost stammered as he said: "I'd like to come over, Lyra dear, and let you see that I'm still very much alive. Someway, honey, you seem to be the only person over here that I know has not changed."

"Don't think that, Phil, dear, you make me afraid. I'm not very much changed. I've grown old and ugly—so haggard I know I should not let you come, but my heart—my silly old heart—will not let me refuse you."

"Then I'll come tomorrow, dear Lyra. Do you remember the last moonlight, Lyra. Do you remember the last moonlight night we were together?"

"I'll never forget it, Philip. It is one of the memories I take out and burnish up when I feel particularly low in my mind. We will talk about it when you come. I'll expect you tomorrow evening at 8."

When he was sure that Lyra had definitely rung off, Philip called up the automobile showroom. "This is Philip Wynne Tracy. Can you get my car to me sometime tonight? I will gladly pay double time."

"It's all ready now, Mr. Tracy," said the man at the other end of the wire. "In fact it was all ready when you were in here this morning, but we wanted to give it a last 'once over.' We can send it up to you now if you want us to."

"All right. Send it along."

"I hope, Mr. Tracy, you're feeling all right after your little mixup with Mr. Kenyon."

"Perfectly all right, thank you. I trust we didn't mess up your salesroom?"

"Not at all, but at that I would have been willing to have messed it up a great deal, provided you knocked a few more teeth out. You certainly gave him what was coming to him, and for the next two or three days he probably won't be showing his ruined phiz to Miss Jones or any other girl."

The grin had returned to Phil's face when he hung up the receiver. Life had a promise or two left in its bag of tricks after all. He had one more telephone call to make, however. The smile on his mouth widened as he called up the fur house. To them he gave his name and asked if they could send him his fur coat as soon as possible.

QUICKSANDS OF LOVE

A New Phase of "Revelations of a Wife"

By Adele Garrison

I LOOKED at Mary speculatively as she asked me what she should wear to Lillian's dinner. I wanted the child to look her best, although, of course, I dared give her no hint that Noel Veritzen's expected presence at the festivity was an especial reason for my interest.

Neither her color nor her eyes were so fresh and brilliant as they were when she had first come to us, and I felt again a stirring of resentment against Philip Veritzen for the rigid regime of work and study which he had imposed upon the child, and which left her practically no time for recreation. Upon the day of her arrival at our home she would have been a dashing picture in the most dun-colored gown. Today, I felt that she needed a distinct color to set off her lustrous brown eyes and the creamy pallor of her exquisite Della Robbia face framed in its curly brown bob.

"That dress I like so much," I told her, "the pink one which makes you look like the heart of a rose. And that odd pin shell necklace which your Aunt Harriet brought back from the other side. Black pumps and flesh stockings—it's just ourselves, you know, and I wouldn't ask you to wear that best gown, only that we old people like to feast our eyes on anything as pretty as you are in that dress."

"Who is going to be there?" she asked.

I checked the names off on my fingers as I uttered them, that I might have a pretext for avoiding her eyes.

"Mrs. Underwood, my father—she's giving the dinner in his honor, you know—your Uncle Dicky, you and I. Mrs. Underwood may have planned to invite some young artist of her acquaintance so that you can have a dinner partner of your own age, but she didn't tell me anything about it."

I salved my conscience with the reflection that I had told only the truth, for I knew no young artist had been invited to the dinner.

"Oh! I hope not," she said. "I'd be wretched company for anybody. I feel as dull as ditchwater."

But I guessed that she was no more indifferent to the prospect of meeting a strange young man than any other 16-year-old girl would be, and I noticed when she joined Dicky, my father and me in the living room a few minutes before the time set for our departure, that she had taken especial pains with her dressing, and warranted my appellation of the "heart of a rose."

Lillian met us at the hall door of her suite, a striking picture in her dinner gown of black and gold, her silver hair caught into a soft knot at the back of her head.

"Take the chief into the living room, Dicky-bird," she said with an affectionate smile at my father. "You'll find somebody there you know, and neither of you needs to be told where to put your things. I'll take Madge and Mary into my room. My dears! How perfectly spiffy you both look! I'm sorry I didn't invite a belted earl and a duchess, so that you might be properly appreciated."

She held us off to look at us and exclaim over Mary's pretty evening coat. Then she led the way down the little corridor past the door of the living room to her own bedroom. Through the opened living room door we could see Dicky being greeted by Noel Veritzen. I had only a fleeting glimpse of the youth, and Mary could have had no better vision of him than I. But I felt my arm suddenly seized convulsively, and heard her voice whisper chokingly:

"Auntie Madge! Who is that?"

Tomorrow's Horoscope

SATURDAY, AUGUST 13.

ASTROLOGERS read this as an exceedingly unpropitious day and counsel caution in all matters of importance.

Under this rule the mind may assume a critical and fault finding attitude, which is unfavorable to persons in the home or in business associations.

Increase in the number of domestic dissensions will be great as autumn advances, it is foretold, and divorces will multiply.

Again astrologers foretell agitation regarding changes in marriage laws and sensational conflicts of opinion.

In today's configuration it is read that the opinions of the older generation are to be accounted of small value, for the new order of things is firmly established.

Campaigns against organized vice, prophesied long before they were started in any state, are to be widespread in the autumn, when the West will lead in great reforms.

This is not a lucky day for starting on any ocean journey, as there may be unexpected and unusual experiences.

Speculation should be avoided, for there will be great excitement on 'change.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have disturbing and puzzling events to meet in the coming year, which should end happily.

Children born on this day probably will be studious and of philosophical trend of thought. They have the augury of prosperous lives.

The Fascinating Love Story of a Girl of the Present Day

Helen Plays a Hunch and Wins, Releasing Betty From Lorna's Net

thought she was nothing but a mean little sneak that you would turn from her back to me. Tell me that you care for me . . ."

"Lorna," he interrupted, "you've made pretty much of a fool of yourself."

Lessways and the two girls, driving to Brooklyn, were silent, each one busy with thoughts of the evening's events, their antecedents and the future.

The Warren family were in bed. Lessway and the girls tiptoed into the living room, closed all the doors, sat down and looked at one another.

"You two infants must be half dead," Lessways remarked, "but I think we had better talk about this thing frankly. We managed to persuade the company that Lorna was pulling a very poor attempt at a practical joke. Later it was intimated that she was not responsible by that time anyway. I doubt if the crowd talk much except among themselves. It wouldn't do any of them any good. Now . . . between us, I think the real reason for her sudden aberration is quite clear. It was because of our mutual friend, Mr. Lorrimer. She—well, she's been jealous of him for some time, so the story runs. And she's heard that he was interested in Betty—and that's how it all came about—"

After a moment Betty told how she had dropped her bag. "I suppose Lorna found it, stuffed the pearls in and then dropped it again at the last moment. You saw her, Helen?"

"Yes . . ." nodded Helen for the second time, Lessways nodding approval. "And so did Mr. Lessways."

And so they never told Betty that Helen had played a hunch and won.

Ready to drop from fatigue, Betty assented to Helen's proposal, "Do go up to bed. I'll come, too."

"Wait a minute," Lessways begged, "may Helen stay here? Just a few moments—I want to talk to her . . ."

Betty nodded. She trusted Lessways.

"Poor kid—" Lessways commented when she was gone.

"Betty," remarked Helen, "isn't really as fit to take care of herself as she thinks she is. But she takes care of us."

Responding to his wondering query, "how do you mean?" Helen proceeded to tell him . . . about her father's death, about her mother, Virginia, Jim and Junior, about Gladys. And she told him of Bob and Betty, their engagement and its frustration.

"I see. He's a very nice chap," mused Lessways. "He ought to get on . . . for her sake and for hers too."

"He will," cried Helen confidently. "He's invented something, you know."

She told him of the automobile polish, of Harry's interest, of their scheming to market it. "But nothing ever comes of it, somehow."

"Harry Martin is a very sound chap," Lessways said thoughtfully. "If he thinks the thing is good—it is. I wonder if I can't help?"

"I'm hungry," Helen announced, yawning frankly. "Come, let's go find something."

He was, too. He felt it as he tiptoed out with her to the little icebox and rummaged therein. They found a leg of fried chicken and a wing, a piece of raisin pie and some nice stale cheese and half a bottle of milk. Helen got two plates and two paper napkins and two glasses and they carried this superb feast to the kitchen table and divided it scrupulously and Lessways found he was ravenous, too . . . and they had a perfectly beautiful time sitting opposite one another and talking utter nonsense.

Here Betty found them when she crept down to know why Helen had not come up.

"For heaven's sake! Are you never coming to bed, Helen?"

Helen yawned and laughed.

"As soon as he washes up," she promised magnificently.

Peter Lessways groaned but rose to the occasion. He carried the plates and glasses to the sink and with his evening coat off and his sleeves rolled up he dabbled around them in lukewarm water and dried them with aplomb. He then emptied the remainder of the meal into the waste pail, wrinkling his aristocratic nose in a combination of distaste and enjoyment.

As he left the kitchen he held Betty back a moment.

"Won't I make a perfect house-broken husband for a tired cinema star?" he asked her, laughing.

CHIC CHERIE ✣ SHE'D SELL FURS IN THE SOUTH SEAS. ✣ LATEST FASHIONS

DeFoug

Of all dumb ways for a girl to spend her vacation this is the dumbest, thinks Cherie. Just because her money simply drifted away from her here she is, sitting in a shop and waiting for a customer to admire the unusual tab collar and the front bow trimmings of these frocks.

The only balm in Gilead is that the frocks themselves are smart. Cherie manages to work up considerable enthusiasm about them. The petal pleats on this skirt are the newest pleats there are. The belt with the pockets is an indication of how important the waistline has become.

Bows are necessary to even the simplest frocks and many of them are draped and drooped to accord with the vogue for soft materials. This dress knew what it was doing when it fastened a wide bow directly in front at the belt. The variation of the square neckline is quite modish also.

"Oh, no!" says Cherie to herself. "Not this!" But is our heroine dismayed? Only for a moment. "After all, she's human and female," thinks Cherie, and though the lady may not look it she is going to be extremely interested in new fashion features. She's got to be or Cherie has lost her job!

Building and Flying Model Airplanes

AN IMPROVED SCIENTIFIC MODEL

By PAUL EDWARD GARBER,
In Charge of Aeronautics, Smithsonian Institution.

THE first six articles of this series told how to build a type of model which was designed primarily for ease in construction, although it also embodies good flying qualities. Having completed this model S-S-1, and thus learned the elements of model aircraft construction, the model maker will be anxious to make a model with greater capabilities.

In making this second model, which we will call the "S.S.2", greater care will be necessary in cutting and fitting the parts, and each completed unit must embody the utmost strength and yet be as light as possible. Practically every unit in this new model will be made to improved standards, involving the latest discoveries and inventions of the successful model flyer.

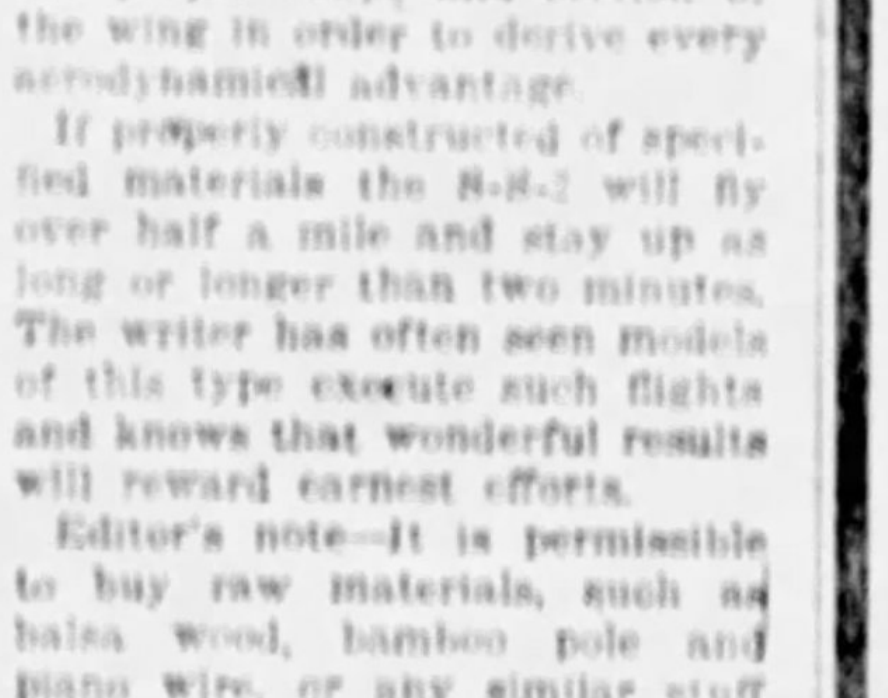
The wood to be used is known as balsa wood. This has only been available to model flyers in recent years, and immediately upon its adoption, model records leaped to previously unattainable marks. Balsa wood grows in Central America, where it derives its name from the Spanish word for "raft," as logs of this material are used for that purpose. Physically it is lighter than cork, and about half as strong as spruce. Its strength may be increased by coating it with banana oil after finished to size. It is obtained from model supply houses, a number of which are advertised in boys' magazines and aircraft periodicals.

The wire used for the fittings is known as piano wire. It is very hard and stiff, and ideal for model aircraft. In cutting it a good pair of hardened cutters must be used, and in bending it a good grip must be obtained. The propellers on this model are more efficient than those on the S-S-1, and must be carved carefully and balanced accurately. They also are made of balsa.

The fabric used will be light paper, preferably that known as Japanese silk tissue, which is extremely light but quite tough. It is important when covering the model surfaces, to keep every surface taut and smooth, retaining the proper shape and section of the wing in order to derive every aerodynamical advantage.

If properly constructed of specified materials the S-S-2 will fly over half a mile and stay up as long or longer than two minutes. The writer has often seen models of this type execute such flights and knows that wonderful results will reward earnest efforts.

Editor's note—It is permissible to buy raw materials, such as balsa wood, bamboo pole and piano wire, or any similar stuff that is hard to make or hard to get. They can be secured at the Model Air Service, 407 Star Building, Washington, D. C.



Discarded mesh bags may be used successfully as chain dish cloths for scouring pans and kettles.

Eggs covered with boiling water and allowed to stand for five minutes are more easily digested than eggs placed in boiling water and allowed to boil furiously for three minutes.

Boiling water should be poured at once over fruit stains on linen tablecloths. Milk—used immediately—will remove ink stains.

FOR THE LOVELORN

By ELEANOR GALE

Anxiously Waiting.

Dear Miss Gale:

I am 29 and have been married 11 years. We have a child of five. About three weeks ago I was away from home for two weeks. I was at my parents' home. While I was away my husband went out with another woman. He works at the same shop where she works. He did not tell me about going out with her. In fact he has denied it. But others have seen them together and told me. Otherwise he is good to me and takes me out nearly every evening. But somehow he doesn't seem to care for me. He thinks the world of our little boy. He gets him whatever he wants. I go to visit my parents who live in the country because I can put up enough fruit for the winter going there. Don't you think he ought to stay at home when I'm away, when he knows I am working just as hard as he is?

ANXIOUSLY WAITING.

Of course, it was quite unfair of your husband to take advantage of your absence. But has it occurred to you that he might merely have been lonesome when he sought the companionship of the "other woman?" Since he does not neglect you when you are at home, my best advice to you is not to leave it—certainly not for longer than a day. After all, it is infinitely more important to retain your peace of mind and the harmony of your home than to go away for the purpose of saving money on your preserves. Apparently your husband is worth keeping. Aside from your one complaint, he seems fond of you and your child. You should have little difficulty in eliminating the "other woman." Make your home as attractive as possible. Be tactful and sweet-tempered. Take care of your appearance and dress in good taste. Transform yourself into the girl he asked to marry him. Without realizing it you may let yourself go. I must caution you to be tactful above all. Do not nag and insist upon his admitting the fact that he saw the "other woman" in your absence. Ignore the whole episode. Don't even try to discuss it with him. He probably knows he was in the wrong, and no man ever likes to admit that.

Monk and Beckie.

Dear Miss Gale:

We are two girls in our teens. We have been going with two young men the same age. We were out riding one day when they became jealous just because we spoke to a friend of ours, so we left them. They come to see us every evening to ask us to forgive them. They admit they were wrong. Please advise us what to do! We love them, but want to do the right thing.

MONK AND BECKIE.

The young men have shown their contrition and repeatedly asked you to forgive them. What more can you ask? By all means forget the incident, if you value their friendship. They have been taught a lesson and probably won't pick a second quarrel on the same score.

Betty Brown Eyes.

Dear Miss Gale:

I am a girl in my teens. I am in love with a man several years my senior. He doesn't care much for me. How can I attract his attention? Is it proper to let a man kiss you before you are engaged?

BETTY BROWN EYES.

If this young man is not already interested in you, I am afraid there is very little that you can do to attract his attention. I can only suggest that you act naturally and unselfconsciously. Perhaps he will become more interested in you in due time. In the meantime, I want to point out to you that you are too young to take the matter to heart. It will be some time before love comes to you in a serious and lasting form.

Bill Tilden Overwhelms Brugnon

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

FRIDAY, AUGUST 12, 1927.

SPORTS COMMENT

By James J. Long

ANY chance that might have existed for a happy reconciliation between the Pirate management and Outfielder Hazen Cuyler is being rendered slimmer with each succeeding day by the attitude of the player, according to reports from the front.

It is said that Cuyler is still pouting over his recent fine and removal from the lineup, and club officials have taken the stand that if he keeps it up he will very speedily pout himself off the Pittsburgh team.

So the situation has changed to the extent that the Pittsburgh club, far from deciding in the end to keep Cuyler for next year, as has been possible until now, may not even wait until the end of the present season to dispose of him.

IT is true that trading is prohibited in the big leagues until after the completion of the pennant races, and in the meantime players can be transferred from one club to another only by the waiver channels, but President Barney Dreyfuss of the Pittsburgh club declares that he will not have a dissatisfied or complaining player on his team, and that if Cuyler does not show a change of spirit he may get rid of him at the first opportunity without waiting for the season to come to a close.

Reminded that such a course would mean that the Pittsburgh club would not be able to get Cuyler's worth in playing material in exchange for him, the local magnate said that right now it was more important to keep the Pirate team of 1927 free of pouting players than to be looking ahead and shaping plans for 1928.

CUYLER'S rest may be a long one. He is on the payroll as usual, and not under suspension, as reported, but it is understood that for the present, at least, he will not be used as a regular except in the most pressing emergencies.

President Dreyfuss himself is authority for the statement that if Cuyler does not quit pouting at once he will be sent back home to Pittsburgh and will not be carried during the remainder of the trip.

One report that reached President Dreyfuss was that Cuyler had jumped the Pittsburgh club and was not with the Bucs in St. Louis. "It is not true," said the Pirate owner, "but Cuyler may go ahead and jump whenever he cares to do so. He has my permission to jump as soon as he pleases."

AMONG the prospects that the Pittsburgh club is depending upon to give the Pirate outfield any bolstering that it may need next year is Adam Comorosky, former Williamsport fly-chaser, who was sold under option in the spring to the Wichita (Kan.) club of the Western League.

Reports of Comorosky's all-around work and the big league promise that he shows continue to be very encouraging. He was out of the game for a week on account of the death of a brother, and during his absence some of the other bidders for the Western League batting championship gained on him, but Adam is back on the job and going great guns again, his present batting average being in the neighborhood of .395.

Art Griggs, who was a football player for Pitt, or "Wup," as it was then called, 'way back in 1905, and who is now president and owner of the Wichita club, says Comorosky is certain to make good next year. Griggs also declares that George Peery, southpaw Pirate farmhand with his club, is the best pitcher in the Western League.

GRIGGS' remark about Peery is a contradiction of the claims of the New York National League club's scouts, who recently insisted that they had landed the best pitcher in the Western League when they purchased Southpaw Walker of Denver, and for whom they claimed to have paid $25,000 "in outbidding the Pirates and Yankees."

Pittsburgh never made a bid for Walker, and was not after him at any time. Scout Chick Fraser of the Corsairs turned Walker down cold after watching him in several games, declaring that he was not as good as Peery, in which appraisal Griggs now backs him up.

Walker, by the way, fell miles short of his advertising in his latest game for Denver, being not only batted hard, but giving seven bases on balls, hitting a batsman and making a wild pitch.

JULES BECK, the Duquesne boxing promoter, will have the distinction of being the only man hereabouts to take a chance on an outdoor boxing show. He has held one and is arranging to put on another, and from all indications these will be the only affairs of the kind staged in the Pittsburgh district this summer.

Jim McGirr found that outdoor boxing would not pay at Cycler Park in McKeesport last year, following a similar experience at Olympia Park several seasons ago, and is vowing "never again." Other fistic impresarios of this section appear to be of the same mind and will take no further chances, so that Beck will have the outdoor field all to himself. His first show netted a profit and he is confident that there will be "some-

HARTNETT OUT TWO WEEKS

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—(AP.)—The Chicago Cubs face their critical Eastern invasion, starting next week, minus the service of their best catcher, Gabby Hartnett. He was spiked in the foot by Felix, of Brooklyn, two days ago and today his toe was too sore for him to walk, with indications that he might be unable to return to the lineup for at least two weeks. Mike Gonzales, the Cuban, has proven his worth as a substitute backstop, but he lacks Gabby's throwing wing and batting eye.

YANK ACE WINS IN THREE SETS

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 12.—(AP.)—William T. Tilden II defeated Jacques Brugnon, of France, 6-2, 6-1, 6-0, in the semi-finals of the Meadow Club's annual invitation tennis tournament today.

Tilden grew better as the match proceeded while Brugnon was plainly discouraged and at the close was only able to negotiate a point here and there. The point score in the three sets was 82 to 36. Tilden needed only 32 minutes to dispose of his French rival.

Brugnon rallied to the net often, but gained little by it, as Tilden's drives went shooting by him for placements. Tilden was content to remain back for the most part and brought to bear little of his smashing power at the net. Brugnon's best weapon was a twisting ground stroke which on rare occasions he was able to place just out of reach of Tilden's slashing racket arm.

Tilden obviously did not unleash the full fury of his game against the French player. By his victory Tilden won the right to play in the final tomorrow.

WIGHTMAN CUP PLAY OPENS

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—(AP.)—Stars of the women's tennis world go into action at Forest Hills today as America's forces start defense of the Wightman Cup against a British array. The United States has won the trophy twice, as have the present challengers, and this year's matches will give either contingent the lead in the series.

Miss Helen Wills, No. 1 on the American team, opposes Miss Joan Fry, No. 2 of the British side, at 2:26 o'clock this afternoon, eastern daylight time. One hour later, Mrs. Molla Mallory, the national champion and No. 2 for the United States, meets Mrs. Kitty McKane Godfree, captain and No. 1 of the invading aggregation.

The doubles matches, starting at 5:30 o'clock, bring together Miss Eleanor Goss and Mrs. Charlotte Hoahmer Chapin of the American players against Mrs. John Hill and Mrs. Gwynneth Sterry of Britain.

LOCAL CINDER CARNIVAL DEPENDS ON WEATHER

The success of the annual Philadelphia Company field day and track meet, to be held tomorrow at Schenley Oval, now appears to rest solely with the weatherman. If he provides a fair afternoon tomorrow, the chances are that the Oval will be packed with fans eager to witness the events on the most varied track and field program compiled here this season for free consumption by the public.

"I Do Not Choose"

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor

PARAPHRASING a certain gentleman who gets on the first and editorial pages oftener than he does on the sports pages of the newspapers, permit me today to indulge in a timely "I do not choose."

It concerns the raging controversy that is gathering momentum from day to day over the fining of Kiki Cuyler by Manager Donie Bush of the Pirates for the player's failure to slide into second base in last Saturday's game with the Giants at Forbes Field. I do not "choose" to take sides in the matter, despite a flock of letters and telephone calls from irate fans who think either Cuyler or Bush is not getting an even break in the flare-up. If I were to accede to the wishes of all of them, I would be rushing to the defense of Cuyler one day and Bush the next, and alternately rapping and praising Owner Barney Dreyfuss for his attitude in the matter.

I have an opinion, of course, the same as most of the fans, and it is that there is some merit on each side of the fence, and that it is not for me to say which side, if either, has been placed in an unfair light before the public. Cuyler's explanation of the play defends his actions; yet Bush is responsible for the rise or fall of the club under his command and must rest on his record at the end of the campaign, so he has the right to discipline the men under him as he sees fit, and Dreyfuss has the right to support which side he believes is in the right.

There is the fans' angle, too, and it concerns mostly the fact that they pay the freight and want a winner and World Series contender if it is in the wood. They have a right to fret and fume and express their views if they care to, but, as for myself, I never have been able to get myself very much worked up over such incidents. There seems to be an unbalanced sense of proportion about folks who have their own daily troubles worrying and waxing wroth over the petty affairs of an athlete or manager who works a few hours a day, six months a year, for a princely salary compared with the 12 months' pay for the ordinary run of mortals.

Somehow, when such instances occur I am reminded of the spectacle of hundreds or thousands of worshipful underpaid clerks and other hard workers chipping in to make up funds to buy automobiles and other costly gifts for sports idols who are sitting on the top of the world with good bank accounts and fat contracts. The very idea always has seemed incongruous to me. Perhaps I am just skeptical, or mayhap hard-boiled and lacking in sentiment, but I maintain my viewpoint at least is practical. I believe it is the duty of a sports writer to see the feet of clay as well as the crowns of glory about the heads of the humans of whom he must write from day to day and that he should chronicle their doings dispassionately and not from the prayerful attitude of a hero-worshiper.

That, if I make myself clear, is why I prefer to let baseball fans argue out their views of the Cuyler-Bush situation and—

Do not "choose" to take sides in the matter.

TOTTEN MEETS CRAWFORD

Charles A. Totten of Stanton Stanton Heights and Joseph I. Crawford of the Oakmont Country Club are contesting for the championship this afternoon in the final of the Stanton Heights Golf Club's invitation tournament. They won their matches this morning in the semi finals.

Totten defeated James T. Lappar, Pittsburgh Field Club, 3 and 2, while Crawford won from Fred B. Weppner of Stanton Heights, 1 up.

WHITCOMBE WINS ABROAD.

O'LOUGHLIN, COOPER WIN DOUBLES TENNIS LAURELS

BEDFORD SPRINGS, Pa., Aug. 12.—(AP.)—Billy O'Loughlin, of Pittsburgh, and Rufus Cooper, of Johnstown, yesterday captured the doubles tennis championship of Southern Pennsylvania, defeating Wilkie and Metzner, of Johnstown, 6-1, 7-5.

The doubles events closed a three-day tournament at the courts of the Bedford Springs Golf and Tennis Club.

CUDDY DEMARCO LOSES ON FOUL TO GOODRICH

BUFFALO, Aug. 11.—(AP.)—Jimmy Goodrich, Buffalo boxer, won on a foul in the tenth and scheduled final round from Cuddy De Marco, of Pittsburgh, here tonight.

Goodrich had Cuddy down in the seventh for a count of nine. He weighed 133½, and De Marco 139½ pounds.

"INVISIBLE FOUL" ENDS DELANEY-PAULINO GO

By DAVIS J. WALSH,
International News Service Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—The rookie ball player, when told to go out and play right field, naturally asked to be directed to the position as he never had been in that particular ball park before, and, judging by the vintage of that immortal chestnut, he was born about 50 years too soon. In this day and age, he could have been a referee of prize fights with nothing to do but wonder where the foul line was.

Of course, such high estate is reserved for only a favored few, but, in the event that he failed to qualify, the noble profession of newspaper critics would call aloud for such as he. The critic no longer attends these functions of the fist for the purpose of commenting on the merits of the contest; he must bend his gaze upon the performers' belts and, when all is suddenly over and the saddened throng is being pushed out of there, he must render his verdict as he saw it, if at all:

Fair or foul?

JUST ANOTHER CONTROVERSY.

Yes, we have another seething controversy with us this morning as a result of the Paulino-Jack Delaney match at the Yankee Stadium, last night. Referee Jimmy Crowley said the fight ended in Delaney's favor on a foul in the seventh round and today a lot of the critics were saying that it didn't. This, by the way, is only a matter of three short weeks since another referee declared that Dempsey won from Sharkey on a knockout in the seventh round and the critics said that he lost on a foul.

Ada Folks to Honor Waner Brothers Tomorrow

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 12.—Ada, Oklahoma, will have its day tomorrow. In honor of Paul and Lloyd Waner, two of the nicest little fellows who ever broke into baseball, the fans of the country town will head for St. Louis Friday night on a special train.

It's a sleeper jump, gol-ding it! and the Ada folks reckon as how they will make quite a stay of it and have a right smart time. It's a far cry from the days when the dad of the two stars drove to the park behind the old gray mare to the present tour on the big Pullmans, but it's a novelty that is bound to be enjoyed.

Inasmuch as Paul and Lloyd are leading the National League in so many departments, the Ada folks feel as if they should be pardoned for wishing to step out.

LINCOLN GIANTS MEET GRAYS HERE TONIGHT

The Lincoln Giants and the Homestead Grays grapple in the first game of their big series at Forbes Field this evening at 6:30 o'clock. The Lincoln Giants are from New York and will play three games with the Grays at Forbes Field, a twin bill being on the slate for tomorrow afternoon.

GUMP PINSTERS TO START

M'GARVEY GIVES UP BOXING BERTH

JOHN McGARVEY, well known and veteran matchmaker of the Motor Square Boxing Club, East End, today was a free agent, after having tendered his resignation last night to the Motor Square officials at a special meeting held in the club offices.

McGarvey long has been contemplating resigning, but insistence of Motor Square Garden officials that he stay caused him to delay his resignation until last night.

There is a report current that James McGirr, proprietor of the Majestic A. C., of McKeesport, may be given the management of Motor Square Garden, although this part of the negotiations has not been completed.

Trials and tribulations peculiar to the boxing racket were given as reasons for McGarvey's resignation.

McGIRR MAY GET JOB.

McGirr, long experienced in promoting popular shows in McKeesport, knows all the prominent boxers in the country and is considered a good candidate as McGarvey's successor.

Another candidate is Johnny Ray, former boxer, who acted last season as an assistant to McGarvey in putting on the East End shows.

McGarvey's resignation, it was pointed out today, will be noted with regret by boxing fans of Western Pennsylvania, as well as by boxers and managers all over the country. Over a long term of years the Pittsburgh promoter has made an enviable record through the class of bouts he has put on and the general tone of his boxing management.

CUYLER RUMORS SPIKED BY DREYFUSS

Branding rumors that Hazen (Kiki) Cuyler, star centerfielder of the Pirates, was on the market as false, Barney Dreyfuss, president of the local club, denied rumors emanating from New York that the Corsair fly-chaser was to be sent to Brooklyn in exchange for Max Carey next fall, and that Max would become manager of the Pirates next year.

"If Cuyler is dissatisfied here he can retire from the game. I'm not satisfied with him or his playing and I don't think anybody else is, for that matter," Dreyfuss stated.

Asked concerning the report that he had a habit of invading the Pirate dressing quarters after ball games at Forbes Field, Dreyfuss declared he hasn't been in the clubhouse for the last 10 years.

Sam Dreyfuss, son of the president and treasurer of the club, who is with the Pirates on the present trip, characterized the report as "too silly for comment" when interviewed in St. Louis last night.

"Cuyler is too valuable player to trade and that no change in the management of the club is being considered at the present time," was the younger Dreyfuss' reply to inquiries regarding the rumors.

Manager Donie Bush spiked reports that Cuyler had been suspended indefinitely for indifferent playing in the recent Giants series at Pittsburgh. Cuyler was on the bench at St. Louis yesterday, although he did not appear in the lineup.

JACK AND GENE CAMPS CHOSEN

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—(AP.)—Looking over Chicago's suburbs with as much care as President Coolidge's envoys searched the Middle West for a summer White House, the house hunters for Dempsey have chosen Lincoln Fields race course, and Tunney's manager has picked the Cedar Crest Country Club as training camps for their impending championship fight.

LOCAL PRINTERS LEAVE FOR NATIONAL TOURNEY

The Pittsburgh entrants in the twenty-fourth annual International Typographical Union baseball tournament will leave tonight for Cincinnati, where they will participate in the competition for the Garry Herrmann trophy, which has been won by the Washington printers for the last five years.

Among the players who will play for Pittsburgh will be Grabowski, Bachman, Brittan, Nelligan, Bresler, Rodgers, Lafferty, Sullebarger, Koerr and Seddon.

TRADERS AT BELTZHOOVER

Appearing at home for the first time this week, Jack Barrett's Beltzhoover tossers will be prepared for a grueling battle this evening with North Side Traders. The latter will appear at McKinley Park in a county league engagement greatly strengthened with the return of Harry Fowler, crack shortstop, who has been out of town for a few weeks.

HAVEY BOYLE

THE Pittsburgh ball club may be interested to know that in the Cuyler-Bush embroglio the articulate fans who take the trouble to write to this department side with Cuyler. Five letters have been received in which the writers variously term the affair an "outrage," an "indecency" and a "shame."

Some may say: "Five protestants are not many." But as a veteran at neglecting to write letters this amount seems to me here to be very high. How many of you have said to yourself at various times, "I must write a letter," and how often have you gone through with the resolution.

A man once said that it is surprising how few letters need answering if one only allows the letters to stay in the desk a sufficient length of time.

Even men whose tools are pen and ink, lead pencil and a typewriter, are loath to write letters. It apparently is a task relished only by managers of mail order houses, gals in love and persons who are owed money.

ONE other exception to the rule may be cited. Baseball umpires apparently do not mind taking pen in hand as the saying goes. Here is a letter from Frank Brown, minor league umpire, who is far superior to quite a few of the umpires in the big show, and also noted as one of the judges who awarded the heavyweight championship to Gene Tunney.

Mr. Brown is spending the summer on the sun-kissed slopes of the majestic Pacific. He is a bit lonesome for Pittsburgh, even in the midst of the pleasant climate of the West Coast. He would like to inhale a little of the atmosphere that permeates Fifth avenue and Smithfield street and would smell of the bouquet coming from Goat Hill.

BUT he is going to stay out West until the season is over, as it is one of his boasts that he doesn't quit easily.

He admits, in discussing the Dempsey-Sharkey bout, he was quite wrong, in that he had picked Sharkey to win, but untroubled by this faux pas, like other sturdy souls, he plunges into the uncertainty of the future by saying he thinks Tunney will again defeat Dempsey. You see, he said before, he is no quitter.

Dempsey may be on the long end out on the Coast, Brown says, as Californians have regained the respect they once held for the former champion. "But Tunney will be smarter than Sharkey," says Brown, recalling Tunney's intelligence in winning the title, "and Dempsey will find even more trouble in Chicago than he experienced that wet night in Philadelphia."

MR. PHIL GLASSMAN fistic entrepreneur of Philadelphia, complimented Pittsburgh with a breakfast stop on his way home from Cleveland. He dropped into the office with his potential featherweight champion, Benjamin Bass, of Russia and Philadelphia. The pair had just accomplished a little work in Cleveland where one, Johnny Fary of Cleveland, had tasted of Bass' left hook to the mouth, and had felt the unpleasant force of Bass' jabs to the stomach.

But Mr. Glassman was not inclined to elaborate on the Cleveland conquest, other than to remark that the house was satisfactory ($11,000) and that Bass had received for his end 30 per cent of this gross. "A nice evening's work," said Phil, flicking expensive ashes off a cigar.

WHAT was mainly occupying Mr. Glassman's noodle was the possibility of arranging for a match between Red Chapman, a New England feather, and Benny Bass. He reported the New York Commission seemed to think Chapman was the best of the feathers and that Bass was close behind. Mr. Glassman seems to think this should be reversed, but he is willing to put his boy against Chapman.

Mr. Glassman reports there is talk in the East of what the boys call "putting in" the Bass-Chapman bout in Philadelphia, since business acumen suggests plausibly enough that the bout would mean more in dollars and cents in Philadelphia, where a local boy would be featured, rather than in New York to which neither boy is attached.

BENNY BASS was along, but like all well-trained boxers, he paid more attention to the breakfast food and the eggs than he did to the conversation. I gathered that possibly between the hours of three and four each afternoon Mr. Bass is permitted the luxury of a 10-word observation on some conventional subject, but that during other hours he must content himself with listening unexcitedly to whatever conversation happens to be handy.

MR. BASS was allowed to observe that Chapman might give him a little trouble. Chapman, Bass reported, has a good left hand, which is troublesome, but not particularly dangerous. Mr. Glassman added that Mr. Chapman could not break a china cup with a crowbar.

SEMI-FINALS CARDED IN MUNY NET TOURNEY

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 12.—(AP.)—Three Middle Western players and one Eastern netster were matched for the semi-finals of the national public parks tennis association here today. Ted Drewes, the St. Louis player who has held the championship three years, was paired with Charles Lejeck, of Chicago, while George Jennings, Chicago, was matched with Edward Jacobs, of Baltimore.

Public parks tennis has a sponsor for the first time in its history following the organization of the national public parks tennis association by the players in the tournament yesterday. Representatives from 11 cities attended the meeting, at which the association was formally organized.

EBBETS ESTATE FOUND TO BE $1,275,811.89

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—(UP.)—The estate of the late Charles H. Ebbetts, president of the Brooklyn Baseball Club, was appraised at $1,275,811.89 today when the will was filed in Brooklyn for probate.

The accounting showed $432,496.26 invested in 55,000 shares of the baseball club and 35,000 shares in the Ebbetts-McKeever Exhibition Company. The rest of the estate consisted of Florida land holdings.

The heirs are Mrs. Charles H. Ebbetts, the widow; Charles H. Ebbetts, Jr., his son, and several grandchildren.

SCHALK 15 YEARS IN GAME

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—(AP.)—The fifteenth anniversary of Ray Schalk's arrival to join the White Sox was spent by the peppery little manager yesterday hopping around on the coaching line in a futile effort to snatch an extra inning victory from Cleveland. The Sox lost, 2 to 1, in the tenth.

DUNDEE BATTLE IS HALTED

By Universal Service.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 12.—Joe Dundee, welterweight champion of the world, and Pinky Mitchell, of Milwaukee, fought five and a half rounds here late yesterday, and at the end of that time they evidently had not done their work so well, for Referee Jaeger stopped the fight and called it "no contest."

The crowd booed the fighters as they disappeared from the ring.

No championship was at stake, because Mitchell weighed 150 pounds, five pounds over the welter limit. Dundee weighed 144 pounds.

Both boxers have been summoned to appear before the State Boxing Commission tomorrow. Payment of the purses has been held up pending the hearing. Dundee was guaranteed $10,000. The referee also has been summoned to appear before the commission.

Tener Heads Veterans In Annual Game At Charleroi Today

Hon. John K. Tener, former star National League pitcher, Governor of Pennsylvania and president of the National League, will head a team of old-time stars in a game with the Charleroi Independents, a team of young players, in the annual old-timers vs. youngsters battle at the Charleroi baseball park today. The contest will get under way at 4 o'clock.

In addition to Tener, the old-timers' aggregation will include Bill Phillips, Barney Wolf and Jack Menafee, in the pitcher's box; Tommy Quinn, of Braddock, Bert Mitchell, Sheriff Ody Abbott, Bob Coulson, Arch Osborne, Jimmy Ganier, Charles McCloskey, Tom McKinley, Willis Humphries, Heavy Torreyson and Tom Cosgrove, of Braddock.

BOB ANDREW SHOOTS 72, COURSE RECORD AT YALE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 12.—(AP.)—As a little warning to Tommy Armour and Johnny Farrell, who are to play against Bobby Andrew and Ben Thomson, August 17, over the new Yale golf course, Andrew today lowered the course record from 74 to 72, two over par.

Thomson, Yale pro, set the old record of 74 and Francis Ouimet, Paul Haviland and Roland McKenzie are among the leading amateurs who have been unable to lower it. Andrew, pro at the New Haven Country Club, was playing in a foursome when he made the new record.

Titleholder, Mates Feted

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

PRAISE was heaped upon the head of Carl F. Kauffmann, National public links champion, and his teammates, Pat McDonough, Dick Wessels, Walter Phillips, W. E. Howell and C. J. Lunden, by Pittsburgh golf enthusiasts, at the most successful banquet ever held by free linksmen here, on the porch and lawn of the Schenley Park clubhouse. About 150 persons gathered to pay tribute to the boys who brought honor and laurels to their city in the National championship last week.

City and county officials, men, women—even caddies—gathered under the blue skies to drink in the words of laud and honor from the lips first of Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang, who presented a fine suit case to the champion on behalf of the Schenley folk, and then from County Commissioner E. V. Babcock, Councilman Robert Garland, Councilman James F. Malone, President of Council Daniel Winters, Councilman Charles G. Anderson, Councilman Robert J. Alderdice, former Mayor W. H. Deihl, John A. Fugassi, Superintendent of Parks James Moore, Judge Richard Martin, Al McBride, Schenley pro, and members of the committee.

Women helped put the party over, and especially Mrs. E. Lucille Bejack, one of Schenley's women stars who is favored as the next city champion, who prolonged the music after all was said and done by taking up an extra collection.

The committee in charge was headed by John Jay Burke, executive committeeman of the public section, U. S. G. A., who acted as toastmaster, and included Kenneth Witherow, Roy T. Klunk, Ernie Herold, C. M. McGillick, Al McBride, Frank and Andy Petrolia, Eddie Kunold and others of the Schenley family.

Music was rendered by Al Reynold and his orchestra, while James Comoroda sang, accompanied by Harry Nossokoff. The latter are from Webster Hall.

MAMAUX EARNS BONUS

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—When Al Mamaux, Newark hurling ace, beat Syracuse in the second game of the series yesterday, 3 to 1, he annexed his twentieth victory of the season and earned for himself a bonus of $1,000.

SPORT COMMENT

thing over" again after his second venture.

ONE other outdoor show, this on a more pretentious scale, had been planned for this summer at Forbes Field, the intention being to bring Jack Zivic and Cuddy De Marco together again, but the project had to be abandoned because of a decision by the Pittsburgh Baseball Club not to permit any more glove exhibitions at the Oakland ball yard.

The Pirate management's change of policy in the matter of renting its field for boxing purposes is due to the discovery that such shows harm the grounds for baseball. The placing of chairs around the ring on the diamond is said to leave the infield uneven and full of holes, and it is impossible for Groundkeeper Jack Fogarty and his crew to restore the surface to its former smooth condition.

Infielders would be in danger of being hit in the face by badly-bounding balls, it is said, so it was decided to bar boxing from the big lot in the future, and the only sport staged there apart from baseball will be Carnegie Tech's home football games in the fall.

Even soccer will find itself banned. The game cuts up the field too much, is the explanation given.

LINCOLN GIANTS HERE

The famous Lincoln Giants Negro baseball team, of New York, opens a three-game series with the Homestead Grays at Forbes Field this evening. Two games will be played tomorrow.

"Warfield's advice decided me on Luckies"

At the Fairfield Country Club Hugh Beaumont explains to Miss Ethel Burnside how he came to prefer Lucky Strikes.

The Noted Actor, David Warfield, writes:

"Among other things, when young actors come to me for advice, I always say, 'Take care of your voice, cultivate it—and watch your smoking.' Usually they eye the cigarette in my hand with some suspicion. And then, I offer them a Lucky Strike—a cigarette I smoke freely, and have yet to feel the slightest effect on my throat. I've been told that toasting does that for this cigarette. When I smoke 'Luckies' my throat is beautifully clear and unirritated."

David Warfield

You, too, will find that Lucky Strikes are mild and mellow—the finest cigarettes you ever smoked, made of the finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, properly aged and blended with great skill, and there is an extra process—"It's toasted"—no harshness, not a bit of bite.

Spottiswoode Aitken Ready To Return After His Illness And Will Make Short Dramas

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 12.—Not so many years ago, Spottiswoode Aitken was regarded as the most famous father on the screen. David Wark Griffith gave him that distinction when he cast Mr. Aitken as the head of the Cameron clan in "The Birth of a Nation." Subsequent films added to Mr. Aitken's fame in similar roles.

Then ill health kept him from the screen and other film fathers took his place. Now, he is improved sufficiently to form a most interesting combination with Charles L. Gaskin, former Vitagraph director and writer. These two men, both of them veterans in their lines and both of them familiar with the ways of motion pictures, are planning to make one-reel dramas based on simple truths with, I suspect, a philosophical trend.

The first of these pictures will be "Abou Ben Adhem," by Leigh Hunt. Among those following will be two features based on incidents in the colorful life of Abraham Lincoln. Pathe is mentioned as the releasing medium.

Certainly these two gentlemen are taking time by the forelock, for there is no doubt but that within the next year we shall have many short reel dramas accompanying the feature comedies.

The stage cannot hope to get John Boles back for some time. Yesterday he agreed to stay right here in Hollywood and lend his presence to "The Shepherd of the Hills." Mr. Boles was recognized in New York as one of the leading young stage actors when Gloria Swanson prevailed upon him to play the leading male role in "The Love of Sunya." She painted the possibilities of Hollywood in such glowing colors that Mr. Boles packed up his wife and daughter and followed Horace Greeley's advice—and came West. I should say daughters—for since he reached Hollywood his family has been increased by a newcomer. Mr. Boles is to play Young Matt, the juvenile lead in "The Shepherd of the Hills." Alec Francis has the title role, while Matthew Betz is to portray the heavy. Al Rogell, who is slated to direct Harold Bell Wright's famous story is getting everything in readiness for the starting date.

Sculptor's Pose -:- "Once Upon a Time" -:- Nine Seconds Flat

ESTHER RALSTON looks like a study for a Grecian bust, but Esther is no "bust." On the contrary, she is an up-and-at-'em winner. She's in "Old Ironsides," too.

SAID WALLACE BEERY to Esther Ralston, or maybe he didn't, since we don't know just how an old salt begins to spin a yarn. Anyway, it is safe to bet its a tale about pirates or sharks or cannibal islands. Wallace and Esther have prominent roles in 'Old Ironsides.'

FOR 100 YARDS was made by Paav—but, no, this is not Nurmi after all. It's Charles Farrell of the "Old Ironsides" cast. That athletic shirt was what fooled us into thinking Charles was a sprinter instead of an actor.

ESTHER RALSTON PLANS "HOME OF HER DREAMS"

Esther Ralston, screen star, is to have the home of her dreams, she announced recently in outlining her plans to start construction of a dwelling on her lot in Bryn Mawr in the heart of Hollywood's exclusive hillside residential district.

Three Weeks in Movie Ring Sends Star To Dentist

Three weeks of being poked in the ribs, hit on the chin, and banged on the side of the head with padded gloves convinced Thomas Meighan that boxing may be all right as a business, but as a pastime it has no attractions. One of the reasons for his opinion is Gunboat Smith.

It has been years since the "Gunner" has indulged in a championship fight, but he still has enough force behind his blows to make life uncomfortable for anybody on the receiving end. Also, he still takes his boxing seriously.

When Mr. Meighan arrived in California the "Gunner" was employed to act as his sparring partner before and during the filming of "We're All Gamblers." The star plays a heavyweight championship contender in the early sequences of the picture and James Cruze wanted realism.

Mr. Meighan defended himself cleverly, but admitted afterwards that his dentist would probably charge him plenty for repairing loose fillings.

Casting Director Sees 250 Job Seekers Every Day

Interviewing an average of 250 persons every working day of the year is no simple task, Fred Datig, casting director at one of the big studios, says. Datig listens to the ambitions of nearly every actor or would-be actor who comes to Hollywood.

"I have heard the pleas of girls who won beauty contests, the pleas of stenographers whose friends have told them they should enter pictures, the stories of small-time vaudeville actors who 'knocked them dead,' in Kokomo, Milpitas and way points, until I know the stories by heart before a job-seeker opens his mouth," Datig declares. "And I want to tell you, you become a rather hard-hearted creature, turning down people because you know they have no talent, and trying to treat everyone squarely.

"Properly casting a picture requires a knowledge that one can gain only through years of experience and study of player's talents. If I should select a man or a girl to play a certain role, and the picture should fail because one person doesn't suit his part, the responsibility for that failure comes right home to me. I have spent days sometimes figuring and going through records—and viewing pictures of other studios, trying to find a player to fit in an important role."

Film Tests for Mamas Latest Innovation In Moviedom

Screen tests for mothers may become popular in Hollywood shortly. All because of the experience of Shirley O'Hara, Adolphe Menjou's leading woman in "A Gentleman of Paris."

Shirley's mother, Mrs. Elliott Nolan, is playing a part in the same picture following her discovery as a screen find by Shirley and Director H. D'Abbadie D'Arrast.

Mrs. Nolan accompanied her daughter to the studio one day and Shirley introduced Director D'Arrast to her.

"Have you ever had any experience in pictures?" D'Arrast asked her.

"Not a bit," she told him.

"I want you to take a screen test," he said. "I think you're just the type I'm looking for, for this picture."

She did and she was. Now mother and daughter are working on the same set.

"MY SON" PLAYERS IN ORIGINAL ROLES

In "My Son," next week's offering of the George Sharp Production Stock Company in the Pitt, Herbert Clark and Escamillo Fernandez, both of whom appeared in the original New York production, will be seen in the roles which they created.

The story of "Old Ironsides," photoplay opening in the Nixon Monday night, was written around the exploits of the U. S. S. Constitution. After Monday there will be daily matinees. Wallace Beery, Esther Ralston and Charles Farrell are principals in the cast.

William Faversham and Company will head the Keith-Albee vaudeville in the Davis next week, presenting Edwin Burke's "The Sponger."

DORIS HILL GIVEN ROLE IN NEW RALSTON PICTURE

Doris Hill has been working hard of late. The little flaming-haired featured player just completed an important role in "Tell It to Sweeney," and the next day was picked to play in "After Office Hours," Esther Ralston's new picture.

VALET ONLY COMPANION OF PLAYER ON VACATION

With "Shanghai Bound," his newest vehicle, in the cutting rooms, Richard Dix has left Hollywood for a vacation in the mountains. He's fishing and hunting, and his only companion is his valet-companion, "Scotty."

"See you tonight," Sally said to him. And then she forgot all about him. Read "Sally's Shoulders," starting next Monday in The Sun-Telegraph.

Local Market Quiet List Holds Firm

The local market was unusually quiet in the early dealings today. While there was a little bidding for various issues in the fuel and miscellaneous groups, offerings were light and there was no disposition on the part of sellers to let go at the prevailing bids. Most attention was centered on the New York exchange where some fireworks was expected as a result of the failure of General Motors directors to declare an extra dividend which was expected to cause some heavy selling. The stock was offered down but good support appeared to be right under the market and there was nothing in the nature of a pronounced break.

Pittsburgh Plate Glass came out in the local trading at 230, unchanged from its last previous price. Glass stocks have been very quiet recently but have managed to maintain a fairly steady tone. The fuel group was very dull. An odd lot of Arkansas Natural Gas changed hands at 9⅛, a recession of ⅛ from Thursday's level. Bids for Lone Star were raised as the session went along and before any of the stock came out the price had advanced to 47⅝, comparing with last night's close at 47⅛.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Brokerage House Suspends.

Immediate aftermath of the Manhattan Electric Supply incident was the announcement today that A. L. Fuller & Co., a New York Stock Exchange house, was unable to meet its engagements. Street gossip was that this concern ran the pool which forced the stock up from around 12 to above 120 from which place it was toppled to 56½, taking a 61-point drop yesterday. The stock was steady to firm in the early dealings today.

Ugly Charges Made.

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed this morning in United States District Court at New York, against A. L. Fuller, L. M. Hart and [illegible] Lambert, individually and as partners, by [illegible] Kennett, [illegible] for $1,800. The petition alleges that the firm is insolvent and that it made preferential payments to certain unnamed creditors yesterday and this morning. The petition also alleges that the firm's liabilities are in excess of $1,000,000 and the assets are [illegible].

National Enameling.

The National Enameling and Stamping Company for six months ended June 30 shows net income of $[illegible], against $[illegible] in the first half of 1926.

Screw and Bolt Earnings.

The Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt Corporation today filed with the Bank of Pittsburgh [illegible] a statement of earnings for the period of January 1 to June 30, 1927. [illegible] The statement is considered very favorable since it shows after all charges and depreciation, including provision for federal taxes, net earnings of $[illegible] per share on the capital stock, or at the rate of approximately $[illegible] per share annually.

Stocks of Copper Increase.

Stocks of refined copper in North and South America on July 31 were 298,710,000 pounds as against 282,720,000 pounds on June 30, according to the American Bureau of Metal Statistics. Stocks of blister, including in process, were 242,966,000 pounds against 240,842,000 pounds June 30. Production of refined in July was 230,288,000 pounds against 226,803,000 pounds in June. Shipments were 220,250,000 pounds against 240,984,000 pounds in June.

Metal Markets React.

Reaction occurred in the week just ending from the activity and strength which have characterized the metal markets recently, Engineering and Mining Journal reports. The damage done has not been great and sentiment already seems improved, owing to steadier London quotations at the close of the week.

In the copper market, most of the large producers continued all week to quote 13⅝ cents for usual eastern points of consumption. Practically all sellers continue firm with no indicated intention of revising their prices downward. The export association has continued at 13.65 cents c. i. f. price all week, but foreign buying has been quiet, as in the domestic market.

Warren Foundry Report.

The Warren Foundry and Pipe Corporation reports for the six months ended June 30 net income of $217,780, equal to $1 cents a share on 250,000 no par shares. Of the profit, $114,852 was earned by the Replogle Steel Company, a new company formerly known, from January 1 to April 19. For the first six months of 1926 the predecessor company reported net profit of $341,851, or $1.36 a share on 250,000 shares.

Liggett Sales Expand.

Louis K. Liggett Company sales are reported as follows:

	1927.	1926.
For July	$4,783,457	$4,394,438
For seven months	28,259,800	25,208,123

Joker in GMC Split-up.

The General Motors proposal of a 2-for-1 split-up contains a joker. The new stock will not be authorized by the stockholders until September 12. In the meantime, there remains ground for speculation in the stock in the numerous conjectures that will be made as to what dividend will be paid. The current expectation is for a $5 annual dividend rate. Such, too, is based on current business conditions. On the basis of present earnings an annual rate of $5 on the new shares or the equivalent of $10 annually on the old stock leaves the way open for periodical extra disbursements. In the meantime, the largest holders of the stock are declared to be standing by their long position. The selling responsible for yesterday's 4-point break was almost entirely professional.

Connellsville Coke.

The relatively small gain in coke production last week was but an indication of a favorable change in the situation than it was proof that the Connellsville region is still more closely approaching a condition of stability which must precede any substantial or prolonged improvement. Even if the week did register a total increase of 1,850 tons, following a long series of declines, it is too soon to be accepted as marking the absolute end of the downward course and the immediate beginning of a change in the direction of the production curve. It would be safe to regard the record of the week as a sign that better things are in prospect, but we yet uncertain as to the time of realization.—The Weekly Courier.

Crucible's Dividends.

Banking interests are of the opinion that the regular common dividend on Crucible Steel common is likely to be raised to an annual rate of $7 a share in the meeting of the board next month. The current rate of $5 a share has been in effect sufficient time to test the stability of the company's earnings. Net income for the first half of this year was only slightly below that of 1926 and the full year's income should approximate those of the past year. The company has purchased [illegible] shares of its capital stock and holds this stock in the treasury. It is generally believed that this stock will be cancelled and earnings automatically increased.

Ecuador Moratorium Ends.

The bank moratorium, which has been in effect in Ecuador since 1914, has been ended with the issuance of a presidential decree declaring open the new Central Bank, a dispatch from Quito says.

Columbia Gas Earnings.

Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation consolidated income account for June showing net income after all charges and preferred dividends of [illegible] and for 12 months ended June 30 [illegible].

Federal Reserve Ratios.

Ratio of reserves of the Federal Reserve System for the week ended August 10 was [illegible] per cent, as against [illegible] per cent in the preceding week and [illegible] per cent a year ago. Ratio of the New York Federal Reserve Bank was [illegible] per cent for the week, against [illegible] per cent the week before and [illegible] per cent last year.

Loans at New Peak.

Loans to brokers made by New York Federal Reserve member banks totaled $3,[illegible] on August 10, 1927, as compared with $3,[illegible] on August 3, 1927. Loans for the week were at a record peak as were those for the August 3 period. The low for the year was $2,718,[illegible] on May 18. The high for 1926 was $2,[illegible] on January 6 and the low was $[illegible] made on May 19.

Dallas Bank Rate Cut.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas, Tex., has reduced its rediscount rate from 4 to 3½ per cent on all classes of paper.

Seminole Output Lower.

Production of crude oil in the Seminole area, [illegible] hours ended 7 a. m. Thursday, totaled [illegible] barrels, flowing from [illegible] wells, as against [illegible] barrels from [illegible] wells on Wednesday.

Cause of Trouble.

A partner of A. L. Fuller & Co. speaking for Mr. Fuller, says: "Our suspension was due to our failure to arrange accommodations for margin accounts on Manhattan Electrical Supply Company stock. The banks would not lend on this security and that made it temporarily impossible for us to meet our engagements. There are only four accounts with a total of 18,000 shares of Manhattan Electrical stock involved. The amount of money involved is not great enough to seriously bother us and we are not going to fail. Any customer of ours upon the payment of his debit balance will receive his security. They are all intact, and I expect that we will be able to overcome this difficulty within a few days when we expect the banks again will lend on the stock."

Offer Golf Ball Stock.

J. H. Holmes & Co. are offering 16,350 shares of class A $1 preference stock (par value $10) and an equal amount of class B common stock, out of a total issue of 32,500 each class B shares of the Worthington Ball Company, manufacturers of golf balls. Price is $11 per unit of one share of preference stock and one share of common.

More Working in Detroit.

Detroit industrial employment last week was 204,427, an increase of 2,271 over preceding week, and comparing with 231,144 a year ago.

To Draft Industry Planks.

A. L. Humphrey, president of Westinghouse Air Brake Company, and Charles W. Brown, president of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, have been named to represent this state, along with seven other leading Pennsylvania industrial executives, on an American industry committee of 100 members to draw up national industrial planks for the Republican and Democratic national conventions.

Foundation Net Drops.

Foundation Company reports for six months to June 30 net income of $161,114 after charges and taxes, against $362,164 for the first six months of 1926.

POOL FAILURES DRIVE STOCKS DOWNWARD

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—(AP.)—Collapse of several pool specialties, following the announcement of a stock exchange failure as the result of yesterday's sensational decline in Manhattan Electrical Supply, unsettled today's stock market, which had opened with a display of strength. Extreme declines in a dozen issues reported to be under pool sponsorship ran from 8 to 23 points although supporting orders were quickly supplied for a few by "inside" interests.

Outside news was again forgotten as the market tried to correct the weak spots revealed in the day's trading. Heavy liquidation took place for both accounts, with the leading commission houses urging their customers to get out of the volatile issues and restrict commitments to the seasoned dividend payers until the corrective process showed signs of being completed.

Banks called about $10,000,000 in loans, and required what Wall Street describes as a "sweetening" of others by demanding more or better collateral, but call money was in plentiful supply at the renewal rate of 3½ per cent.

Eureka Vacuum showed an extreme decline of 22½ points by touching 51, but later rallied well above 60. Air Reduction collapsed 19 points to 165, Houston 11½ to 115 and Pittsburgh Coal, Commercial Solvents B, A. M. Byers and White Sewing Machine sold down 8 to 12 points before they met sufficient support to stem the tide of selling.

Early gains of 1 to 2 points in Baldwin, General Motors and many other rail and industrial leaders were cancelled, and in some instances replaced with losses running as much as 5 points.

Manhattan Electrical Supply, which broke from 127 to 56½ yesterday, opened today at 61, advanced to 61⅞ and then collapsed again to 50½, a new low level for the year.

The closing was weak. Inability or unwillingness to meet margin calls forced a lot of fresh stock on the market in the late afternoon, when a long list of shares like Atchison, Jersey Central, General Motors and General Electric were depressed 4 to 6 points. Air Reduction extended its loss to 21 points, Commercial Solvents B to 17 and DuPont to 15. General Railway Signal, Union Carbide, Sterling Products, United States Cast Iron Pipe, Safety Cable and Western Maryland yielded 6 to 8 points. Total sales approximated 2,500,000 shares.

Receiver Asked for Brokers

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—(AP.)—Shortly after A. L. Fuller & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, were suspended today for inability to meet their obligations, an involuntary petition in bankruptcy, with an application for the appointment of a receiver, was filed in Federal Court.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—Influenced by unsatisfactory weather in Europe and by relative firmness of Liverpool quotations, wheat took an early swing upward today. Too much rain, especially in France and England was reported. Opening at ⅛c off to ⅝c up, wheat later rose all around to well above yesterday's finish. Corn, oats and provisions developed strength also, corn starting ⅛ to ⅜c lower, but subsequently scoring gains.

Adverse harvest conditions reported today from Europe were taken as indicating both lowered quality of wheat and some decrease of yield.

Necessity of purchasing wheat from North America in more liberal volume was also reduced. Advices from France in particular said wheat in the shock was being damaged by excessive moisture.

Field reports from domestic spring wheat territory were less pessimistic. A report from Valley City, N. D., said harvest was becoming general in that district and that wheat shows less rust damage than farther East. Southern North Dakota has suffered considerable loss by rust, but still has a crop above average.

The New York Bond Market

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—(AP.)—Price changes in the bond market were very [illegible] but generally toward higher ground. Firmness continued, more because of the current easy credit conditions than to any increase in buying.

Standard Oil of New York 4½s changed hands in large volume around [illegible], fractionally higher than yesterday's close and not far below the high level of the year. North American Edison 5s, International Telephone 4½s also improved in price, but Bethlehem Steel 5½s were in supply.

Erie refunding 5s were once more in the lead of the high-grade railway mortgages, selling within a quarter of their high record price. Chicago & Northwestern 4¾s were rather freely offered, but easily absorbed.

Comparatively little attention was paid to the foreign group, and United States government obligations were decidedly quiet.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange [illegible] were as follows, [illegible] United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars.

Enforce All Existing Laws Against Unclean Literature

A sort of degenerate sensationalism prevails among certain writers and books.

It is the same degeneracy which we are beginning to drive off the stage. There is no reason why we should allow the wider pollution through literature publicly and promiscuously distributed to the young.

In most states and cities no more laws are needed. It is only necessary to enforce existing laws. City authorities that fail to enforce laws against indecent books are just as remiss as those who fail to enforce laws against dangerous criminals and laws against the spread of infectious diseases.

Obscene and suggestive books are the worst form of crime against immature and impressionable minds. They are the surefire disseminators of mental disease.

The progress of individual and national character is marked by control of the baser passions and the substitution of decent social instincts.

He is an enemy to individual character and society who advocates, depicts and glorifies the basest elements in our nature, and mocks the men and women and institutions standing for better things.

We would allow no such man to broadcast his filth in public speech on the street corner. Why should we allow him to avail himself of the more extended use of the printed word for the private reading and corruption of our sons and daughters?

Let the cities follow the example of Boston and put their literary street cleaning departments to work. Let the Federal government give proper enforcement to its law forbidding the mails to indecent literature.

We Should Have More Happy Middle-Aged Women and MORE SINGING in This Country.

A loyal British newspaper tells you that "this picture shows the Queen at a moment of delightful relaxation." It shows her, also, very happy, as all women of middle age should be. She is taking tea in the grounds of the University College, to celebrate the centennial of that ancient institution. Students are singing, the crowd sings with them, "Pilgrims, From Many Paths We Came,'" and the Queen, amused, beats time to the music while the students sing.

Singing in crowds has taken a great hold upon England. The King himself recently joined with a hundred thousand of them in a "Community Sing," led by an American, the only man in England that can keep a hundred thousand singing together.

QUEEN MARY OF ENGLAND LEADS THE SINGING.

The King of England, good-natured George, sets a good example when he sings at the top of his voice with 100,000 of his subjects, going wherever the British people want to see him, taking part in everything.

And Queen Mary sets a good example, too, wearing sensible hats and sensible dresses. Her skirts do not drag on the ground, yet they DO cover her legs. She would be setting a bad example to her children if she dressed foolishly, and she doesn't allow those that are TOO foolishly dressed to come to her grand parties at Buckingham Palace.

Of course, we wouldn't trade our Calvin Coolidge and Mrs. Coolidge for all the kings and queens on earth. The President and his wife also set a good example, but we should recognize our own shortcomings and praise British royalty when it deserves it—for a change.

When you look at Queen Mary and a modern flapper, you have no trouble deciding which is the queen and which is the flapper.

In this country, when you look at a sixteen-year-old flapper and a sixty-year-old grandmother, you very often cannot tell which is which when their backs are turned.

New York Day by Day

by O.O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 12—Thoughts while strolling: Billie Burke is letting her hair grow. A huckster crying "Roast-i-neers!" The neat-caged baking rooms of the midtown Wall street. Wonder if those prominent people in the ads do eat yeast cakes?

Nacha Rambova wearing a flaming red turban. Those ladies in black silk who reach middle age and never seem to grow older. Franklin Booth, the artist. Another new shooting gallery. With penny fortune telling and weight machines and these jingling tunes spurting from a mechanical piano.

An old man wearing carpet slippers. Black beards suggesting nargiles. A close packed district of squalor spreads into gorgeous apartment splendor. Whatever became of mission furniture? Ditch diggers eating cheese and drinking cold tea.

The pleasant smell of wood smoke. There's ex-Mayor Hylan. A dog ambulance. No necking, warns a 15-cents-a-dance academy. A man with a turkeygobbler red face eating an ice cream cone. Those "chez" and "maison" specialty shops.

With brocaded elegance and round shouldered vases. A former football star managing a garage. A scissors grinder who yodels. Saratoga potato chips frying in a window. In a place offering pickled partridges and snails. The thump-hiss of west side railroad yard engines.

The brilliantly lighted jinkle-jumble jewelry shops. With ponderous safes. Does anyone buy those huge pretzels hanging on sticks? Armenian women wearing rope sandals and carrying heavy packs. Returning golfers rushing to chop houses.

The steady stream of humanity across Forty-second street. Feet that shuffle, skip and drag. A man selling gingerbread men from a tray. Pool halls, beauty parlors, quick lunch and quick drink stands. And how do they all survive? The amethyst twilight and evening lull.

The avenue has recently offered display window bits of pantomimic drama. One was presented after traffic desolation set in for the evening and the spectators overflowed the sidewalk to the street. The view I had was from a taxi waiting for lights to change. It was a drawing room scene. A Japanese maid entered, answered a phone, then turned to greet a lady in evening clothes. Then a man came through another door—and the taxi rolled on. The idea is to display some striking costume or household article in a glamorous background.

A corner on the avenue in the 40's after dusk is a rendezvous for the deaf and dumb. It becomes an open forum where they smile one moment and seem serious the next. Many are women. It is noticed that the usual curious crowd is considerate. It does not stop. A number of mutes in New York hold responsible positions. They are especially apt at figures. And their sense of humor is often highly developed. At one of the luncheon places patronized by motion picture magnates, one wrote on his pad to a stranger at his elbow: "I like to come here. I cannot hear them eating soup."

More Truth Than Poetry

By S. E. KISER

Good Luck, Sister—

"I WANT to live my life myself,"
said she,
"And please refrain from handing me advice;
I'll be the girl that I prefer to be,
And no one else will have to pay the price.
The things that grandma likes are not the kind
Of things from which I ever got a kick;
I think I'd like to manage my own mind,
And I guess I'm smart enough to do the trick.

"WHY should anybody care
What I wear or fail to wear?
And why they call me wi'd I fail to see!
If it fills my soul with joy
To be necking with a boy,
What right have you to say that mustn't be?
My life is all my own;
It belongs to me alone,
And I want the kind of fun that's fun to me.

"IF THEY don't like what I do
they needn't look;
They needn't tell me what to think or say;
I don't intend to sit in any nook,
And let my chance for pleasure get away;
I'll live my life myself, and as I please;
And no one else need be at all concerned;
So don't be shocked because I show my knees
Or gasp because I have my stockings turned.

"OLD ladies make me smile
By assuring me that I'll
Be sorry in good time, but wait and see;
I am not a bit afraid
Of predictions that are made,
And I like to go a pace that's fast and free;
Let 'em worry, let 'em stare;
It is little that I care,
For I want the kind of fun that's fun to me."

A Bad Little Playmate

By DR. FRANK CRANE

You don't like to have your children play around with a bad boy. Even if he is doing pretty good at present you may not like his record.

With all the talk to and fro about the prohibition amendment we may be pardoned for observing that Mr. Gin is a bad little playmate.

It may do you no harm to take a snifter of gin once in a while. About that we shall say nothing. People have their opinions.

But we noticed the other day where one actor beat another one up in Hollywood and unintentionally murdered him. Both had been drinking heavily.

Gin may not have been the criminal, but he certainly was accessory to the crime.

When two people committed a particularly bloody murder recently in the East, they celebrated the occasion with a few drinks.

In almost all the cases of disorderly conduct in automobiles and improper attacks upon girls, gin is to be found in the hip pocket.

Courts may look with leniency upon those crimes where the perpetrator is befuddled with alcohol, but we notice that alcohol has a look in almost every time a particularly heinous crime is committed.

A famous moving picture star recently served a night in jail in Beverly Hills. It was the sequel to a wild party at his house, in which among those present was Mr. Gin.

He is usually an honored guest at most tragedies.

Youth may want its high jinks and resent our interfering with its pleasures, but we don't like their playing around with a knife with which father committed suicide. It shows a lack of feeling, to say the least.

The pathway of Mr. Gin has been so strewn with human wreckage, blasted reputations and women's broken hearts that he becomes a suspicious playmate.

To those who are looking for a good, short rule to observe in regard to bootleg, we can recommend the exhortation—Don't.

Once Over—By J. J. MUNDY

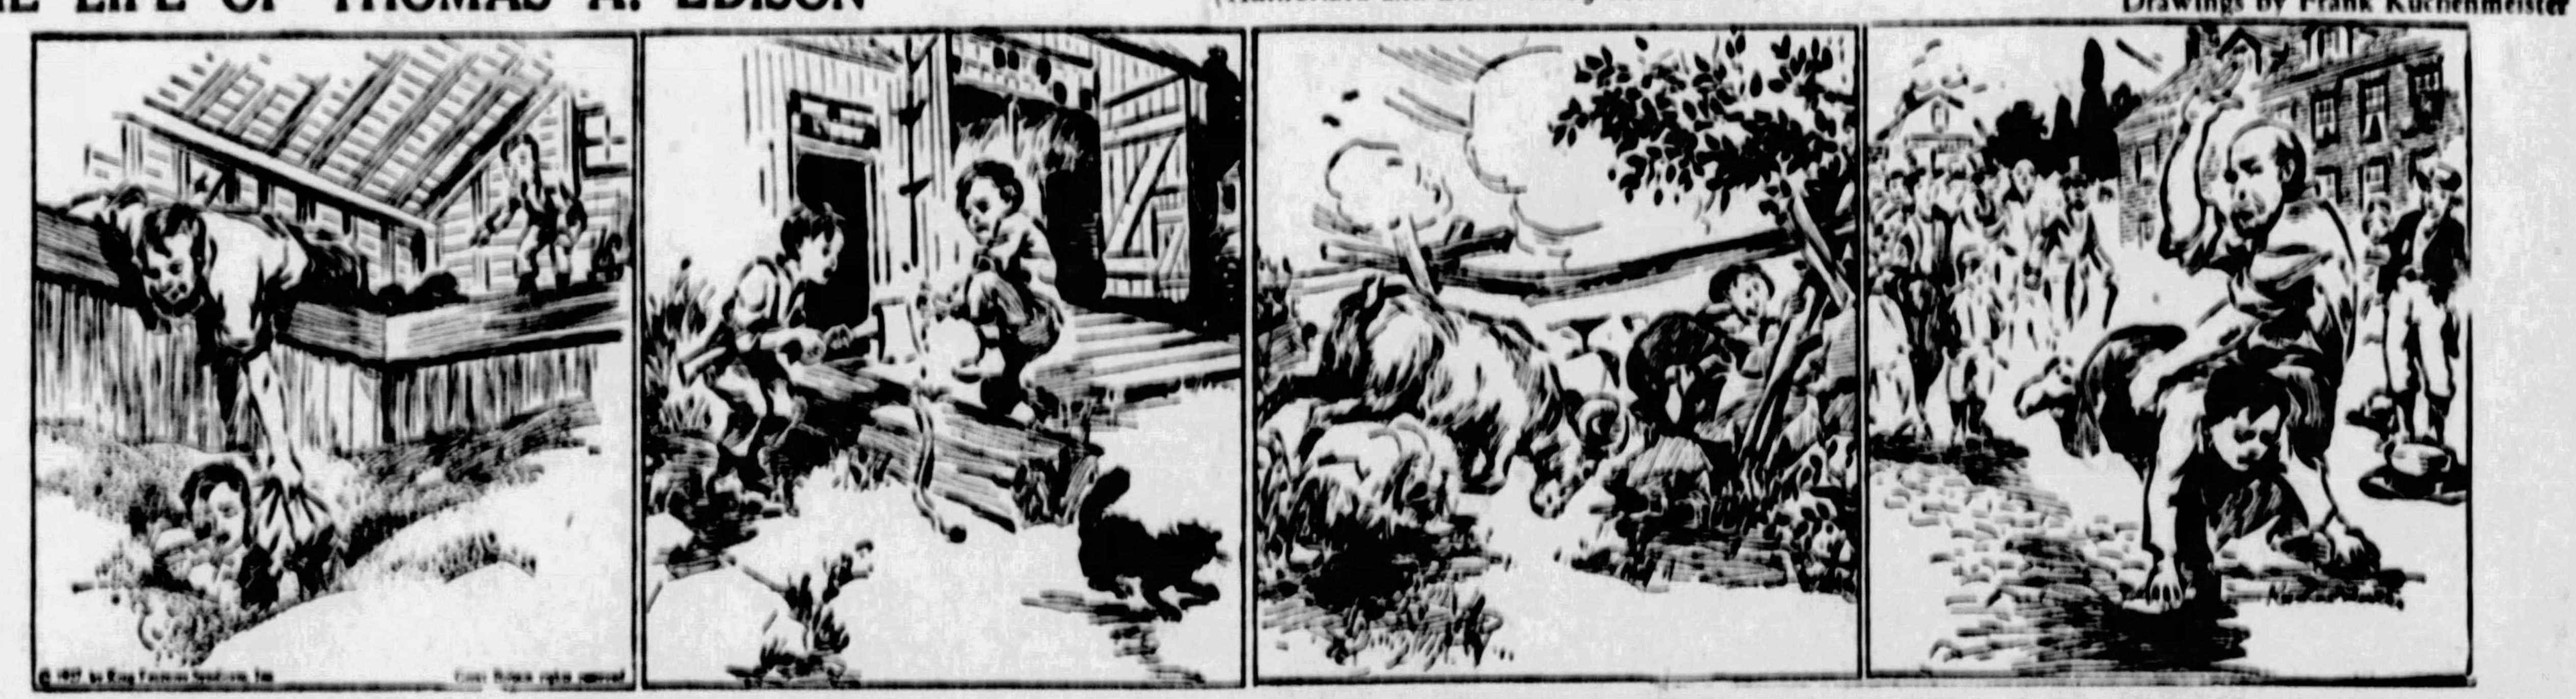
KEEP COOL

WHY fret about the obvious? There have been hot summers since you and mankind can remember. Such being the case, take it like a philosopher. Why add to your own discomfort by reiterating that it is so "beastly hot"? Perhaps you add envy to your discomfort. You wish you could join the number who have time to keep cool and comfortable on a hot day. You blame luck and think it is the cause of your uncomfortable condition due to the weather.

THE LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

(Authorized and Endorsed by Mr. Edison)

Text by Arthur J. Palmer
Drawings by Frank Kuchenmeister



YOUNG Edison's local pilgrimages in search of knowledge frequently led him into difficulties and sometimes into real danger. On an exploring expedition in one of the grain elevators of his native town he tumbled into a great pile of wheat. Only a timely rescue saved the terrified boy from smothering to death.

WHETHER intently absorbed in a mental problem, or the victim of carelessness, Edison lost the top of a finger while holding a strap another lad was shortening. His eagerness to help others is evidenced throughout his life. His uppermost thought seems always to have been "How can I better life for my fellowmen?"

THE irrepressible young investigator got into trouble with annoying frequency. One day, while busily engaged in digging out a bumblebee's nest near an orchard fence, an ugly ram attacked him from the rear, butting him into the fence. Before the second butt, "Al" was on the other and safer side, but much in need of arnica.

ONE day for some apparently unknown reason, young "Al," as he was called in those days, built a fire in a barn. In spite of the rapid spread of the flames Edison escaped, but the barn was a total loss and the lad was publicly whipped in the village square as a dramatic warning to other adventurous youths.
